Session ends without campaign bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Shouting and paper throwing erupted in the Missouri Legislature near the midnight adjournment of the 1974 regular session Tuesday night as an attempt to ram through campaign reform legislation was successful in the House but failed in the Senate.

The campaign reform bill cleared the House about 10 minutes before midnight following nearly five hours of conference committee work to negotiate differences between the House and Senate versions.

House Speaker Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St. Louis, ignored Representatives seeking recognition and called for a vote on the conference report. Several representatives began yelling at Rabbitt and tossing paper in the air and pacing up and down the aisle. The vote carried.

Meanwhile, in the Senate, a typing error held up distribution of copies of the conference committee report and Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, explained the bill in the last five minutes before the mandatory midnight adjournment.

Al Booker, a Senate employe, started to unplug the electric clock to delay the automatic adjournment as a senator sought to question Cason about the conference bill.

Several senators saw Booker and shouted at him not to touch the clock. He stopped the clock as nearly all the senators rose, shouting, with Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps pounding his gavel.

The shouting continued for a couple of minutes and then it was 12:05 a.m. Sen. Lawrence Lee, D-St. Louis, the majority leader, called for an immediate vote at 12:03 a.m. He was shouted down.

Finally Lee moved for adjournment and it was over with no campaign bill.

Several significant bills, however, gained approval from both houses in the waning hours of the four-month regular session and were sent to the Governor's desk, including revision of the state's Workmen's Compensation Law, abortion regulation and Gov. Christopher S. Bond's favored prenatal care bill, tacked on to a compromise hospital aid plan.

Killed or left unattended at the close were the reinstatement of the mandatory death penalty for certain crimes, elimination of the waiting week for collection of unemployment compensation, curbing of corporate farms and revision of the school aid distribution formula to give more school districts more money.

As the state's nearly 200 legislators left the capitol for the first extended period since a special legislative session began Dec. 3, these legislative gains were noted.

—Expansion of the coverage under Workmen's Compensation with increased beneits. The bill increases maximum weekly benefits from $70 to $95 for permanent total disability, $65 to $75 for permanent partial disability and $10 to $21 in rehabilitation payments.

It requires participation in the compensation plan by all employers of more than five persons excluding farm and domestic labor employers with yearly payrolls or less than $2,500.

—The abortion bill, criticized in the Senate as being unconstitutional would forbid abortions after the first three months of pregnancy unless the woman had been raped or if it was necessary to save her life.

The measure would allow abortions within the first three months of pregnancy for any reason, but they would have to be performed by a doctor in a hospital. Consent of the father would also be required except in cases of rape or if the abortion is necessary to save a life.

Abortions by the saline injection method are prohibited by the bill after the first three months of pregnancy.

—A combined mental retardation prevention and hospital aid bill that survived a stormy legislative session was also approved by both houses and sent to the Governor. The measure combined two bills, one favored by Bond and one he opposes.

The combine took place on the House floor as a Democratic attempt to force Bond to sign the measure in order to get the mental retardation provisions.

The hospital aid portion of the measure would give hospitals that show a deficit in operating costs 10 per cent of the deficit.

Bond vetoed a similar hospital aid package last year, but the chances for it's approval by the Governor may be better now because he wants the treatment and detection program for mental retardation.

The mental retardation detection and treatment program is designed to treat and identify mothers considered likely to bear mentally retarded children. Preference for state aid would be given to hospitals which participate in the mental retardation program.

—A bill making sales, use and income tax evasion or failure to file returns a felony gained Senate approval and

4 file for 10th district position

JEFFERSON CITY-- Three candidates have filed against incumbent Rep. Bill D. Burlison of Cape Girardeau who is seeking re-election to Congress from Missouri's 10th District.

Opponents for Burlison's position are Arthur T. Stephenson, a Caruthersville Democrat, and Virginia E. Hendricks of Dexter and Truman Farrow of Jackson, Republicans. Burlison is a Democrat.

A flurry of candidates for congressional races hit the Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick's office to file just prior to Tuesday's 5 o'clock deadline. The number of candidates for Missouri's 10 seats in the U. S. House of Representatives on the August primary ballot now stands at 42.

All 10 of the state's incumbent representatives filed for re- election and all seats will be contested in November.

Associated Gas requests rate increase

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark. — The Associated Natural Gas Co., a subsidiary of Arkansas - Missouri Power Co., Tuesday filed an application with the Missouri Public Service Commission in Jefferson City asking for a natural gas rate increase. It was further requested that the new rates go into effect June 1, according to the company's president, Frank G. Smith Jr.

Except for purchased gas adjustments, it is the first time in 20 years that the company has petitioned the state regulatory agency for a rate increase, he said.

The proposed rate increase, affecting all of the Associated Natural Gas Co. accounts, would amount to a total of $1,303,178. Smith cited escalating operating costs and inflation as the principal reasons Associated is seeking new rates.

He said the vast majority of stock - in -trade items used by the business has rapidly increased in cost, citing as an example steel pipe that cost $80.66 per hundred feet last year which now costs $92.76, an increase in less than one year of 15 per cent.

Increases in cost of equipment for maintenance and operation, wages and money costs were also cited. Just a year ago, he said the firm was paying six per cent interest on money borrowed and is now paying 10 per cent.

"Although we are under orders of the Securities and Exchange Commission to dispose of our natural gas properties, an increase in natural gas rates is necessary," Smith stated. "The company's natural gas

JEFFERSON CITY — State Rep. C. F. Cline of Sikeston will be opposed in his bid re-election to the 159th District seat by David Lee Page of Sikeston. Seeking the position on the Republican ticket is Verlan Beacham of Bernie.

Incumbent Rep. Fred E. "Gene" Copeland of New Madrid was the only Democrat to file in the 161st District. He will be opposed in November by Francis Hulshof, a Portageville Republican.

Rep. Fred DeField of Charleston is unopposed in the 160th District, and Vic Downing of Bragg City, the incumbent in the 162nd district, is also unopposed.

The State Senate terms of Nelson B. Tinnin of Hornersville and Albert Spradling of Cape Girardeau do not expire this year.

The primary election will be held Aug. 6.

Sikeston sailor saves man's life

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Navy says a young sailor from Sikeston, Mo., has been honored for grabbing a wouldbe suicide victim by the scruff of the neck and holding him for a state patrolman.

A man was climbing the railing of the San Diego - Coronado Bay Ridge when Yeoman 2.C. Don Jones, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Jones of 403 Prosperity, Sikeston, stopped his car and tried to talk him out of jumping a Navy spokesman said.

The two men struggled for several minutes before a California highway patrolman arrived. The unidentified man was finally strapped down and taken to a hospital for psychiatric care.

According to Jones' mother, he had been following a slowing car on the bridge and got out to offer assistance when the car stopped. When the driver headed toward the bridge rail, Jones realized that a suicide attempt was taking place and tried to halt the man.

A scuffle that turned into a boxing match began and Jones' wife Brenda had to lend a hand when the man began to drag Jones toward the rail.

Mrs. Jones, the former Brenda Graham of East Prairie, was kicked and knocked down in the struggle.

The incident took place Jan. 28. Jones, who was awarded the Navy Medal for his act, has since reenlisted for six more years.

Council approves $1.2 million budget

The City Council Tuesday approved a budget of $1,279,810 for the 1974 fiscal year, which begins today.

The budget includes a pay raise for all city employes, funding for a department of economic development, funds for proposed street and storm sewer improvements and a new northside fire station.

The budger is about $4,000 lower than the 1973 budget of $1,283,575.

Budget allocations are $153,690 for the general government fund, which includes $505 for the City Council, $38,640 for the city manager's office, $45,375 for the city clerk's office, $10,350 for the city attorney, $7,390 for municipal court, $4,590 for elections, $6,050 for public buildings and $40,890 for the new office of economic developments.

The budget allocates $440,180 for public safety, including $308,985 for the police department, $104,630 for the fire department, $4,500 for civil defense, $14,694 for regulatory inspection and $7,370 for animal protection.

For roadways and sanitation, the city budgeted $280,895, including $20,375 for engineering and $260,520 for streets.

Included in the city's street plans for the coming year are the widening of East Kathleen Avenue from South Kingshighway to South New Madrid St., widening Cresap Place, widening Garwood Street from Edwards Street to the east end and extending North West Street to Salcedo Road, Wakefield Street from the Frisco railroad crossing to North West Street and William Street from Malcolm to Cole's Subdivision.

Renovation of the existing storm sewer system is also planned.

Recreation will receive $170,370 in the budget, including $125,370 for parks, $75,000 of which goes to the construction of the new recreational complex. Also included in the recreation budget is $45,000 for the library board.

The airport will receive $46,600.

Miscellaneous expenditures, including debt retirement and land purchases, are budgeted for $150,200, and contingency funds are budgeted for $37,878.

Pay increases will total a 10 per cent hike for administrative personnel and a blanket $960 annual increase for police, fire and street personnel.

The $180,000 in federal revenue sharing funds the city will receive this year are distributed throughout the budget.

The council passed a resolution fixing the city property tax rate for 1974 at $1.50 per $100 assessed valuation, the same as last year. Of the $1.50, 91 cents will go into the general revenue fund, 20 cents to help pay off the 1965 water and sewer bond, 19 cents to the library fund and 20 cents to the park fund.

Bill Whitlock, acting city manager, said the park board will need about double the revenue next year because of expenses added by the new 140- acre recreation complex. He said the council will have to find some way to come up with the added revenue.

Whitlock said the city can raise its general revenue tax rate by nine cents without a public vote. Such a move would add an additional $23,000 to city income.

The council authorized City Court Judge James Sickal to designate police officers to swear out complaints. The city has gone to a sworn complaint system when police make arrests. Under the law only the judge is allowed to sign a complaint.

Police Chief Leon Culp told the council the judge would designate nine men on the force to swear out the complaints.

Under the old system, one party would often sign a complaint and then later refuse to prosecute. This happened quite often in family disputes, City Attorney Manuel Drumm told the council.

Hopefully, under the new system, where the person has to make a sworn statement, they will think about whether or not they want to prosecute before signing a complaint, Drumm said.

The council approved a bid for a new street sweeper. The city had asked three companies to submit bids, but only Key Equipment and Supply Co. of Maryland Heights did.

The Key Equipment bid was $12,770, plus the city's current sweeper, a 1971 model. The council voted to add glass doors for an additional $360. The doors will enable the driver to see a larger area while the sweeper is in operation.

The council voted to approve transfer of ownership of a thin strip of land along the south side of West North Street, west of Alabama Street, from the city to Sikeston Recovery Inc. Sikeston Recovery will sell the land to property owners to allow them to increase the size of their lots.

The Rev. Paul Walker, pastor of First Christian Church, reported on his study of what other cities are doing in the way of establishing human resource committees.

He suggested the first step toward such a committee in Sikeston should be the establishment of a directory of social services to which people in need could refer.

Races develop in Bootheel as filing closes

Primary election activity appears to be more lively in New Madrid County than in Scott, Stoddard and Mississippi counties as the filing deadline for the Aug. 6 primary election arrived at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

This is the first time in several years that there has been as much competition among Democratic candidates in New Madrid County, and for the first time since the 1970 national census revealed that the county population is less than 30,000, the county probate judge will also serve as magistrate judge. Probate Judge John R. Bailey of Portageville is unopposed for the combined office.

Competition among the Democratic candidates involves those seeking nominations for the offices of county collector of revenue, county treasurer and recorder of deeds, according to County Clerk Jesse H. Wilkins, who said four candidates are running for both the collector and [illegible] offices, and three are seeking the recorder's post.

Wilkins said there no Republican candidates filed for any county office.

In the race for the collector's post, being vacated by William H. Dean are W. A. Scobey, W. R. Phillips Jr. and Robert A. Riley of New Madrid and Van Whittle of Canalou.

Competing for the county treasurer position, being relinquished by W. R. Phillips Jr., are H. H. "Bud" Townsend Jr. and Price P. Thompson of New Madrid, Shirley LaPlant of New Madrid Route One and O. D. Henning of Morehouse.

Recorder of Deeds Linus E. Young of Portageville is opposed for re-election by Donald R. Schaffer of Lilbourn and Robert B. Hedgepeth of New Madrid.

Jimmy W. Farrenburg of New Madrid Route One is unopposed for county clerk to succeed Wilkins, who is retiring.

Other candidates unopposed for re-election are [illegible] Madrid, prosecuting attorney; Van H. Sharp Jr. of New Madrid, circuit clerk; Raymond Ashley of Catron, presiding judge of the County Court; John H. Calvin of Sikeston Route Three, associate judge of the County Court first district; and John H. Workman Jr. of Portageville, associate judge of the County Court second district.

Unopposed Democratic committeemen and committeewomen candidates in each of the 11 townships:

Anderson: Jerry Bell and Vitice Pierce of Gideon.

Big Prairie: Jim Huls and Dorothy Fern Roberts of Matthews.

Hough: Elwood Pickett and Marsha Pickett of Matthews Route One.

LaFont: Charles Pikey Jr. of Conran and Hazel Pardon of Portageville Route One.

[illegible] Nadine Collier of Lilbourn.

New Madrid: Louis Martin of Kewanee and Virginia R. Recker of New Madrid.

Portage: R. L. Saalwaechter and Doris W. Warren of Portageville.

St. John: J. W. Stowe and Virgie Lawfield of East Prairie Star Route.

Unopposed Republican committeeman candidates are: Erwin Lloyd of Lilbourn in Lewis Township; Charles L. Spitler of New Madrid in New Madrid Township; and Don Rone of Portageville in Portage Township.

Several races have developed for Scott County offices in the Aug. 6 Democratic primary election.

Filing closed Tuesday with two or more candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for presiding judge and first and second district associate judge positions on the County [illegible] treasurer.

Three Democratic township committeeman positions also have more than one candidate.

No Republicans filed for county offices other than township committee positions.

For presiding judge, a race has developed between Louie Hirschowitz of Oran, presently serving as second district associate judge, and Bill Lewis of Sikeston a former associate judge of the first district.

Eldon Ziegenhorn of Sikeston, the incumbent first district judge, is being challenged by Arthur Bruce of Sikeston.

Les Lankford of Chaffee, the current presiding judge, is relinquishing that post to run for the second district associate judge position. He is opposed by Melvin Glueck of Illmo and Donald E. Vance of Chaffee.

Incumbent County Clerk Bob Kielhofner of Chaffee is being challenged by Phil Waldman of Sikeston.

PUBLIC CAMPAIGN FINANCING

The Senate has passed a revolutionary scheme to finance all federal election campaigns out of the U. S. treasury. The measure, however, is now being considered in the House of Representatives where, we hope, cooler heads will prevail and will kill it.

We sympathize with the aims of the public financing idea and are painfully aware of the well-publicized and disgraceful abuses it is designed to check. At the same time, however, we believe it would simply substitute one set of problems for another set.

Former U. S. Senator John J. Williams (R-Del.), who for years was regarded as the "conscience of the Senate," summarizes major objections to the proposal in the March issue of the Reader's Digest.

"For one thing, federal financing would make political parties unresponsive to the people," writes Williams. "Guaranteed millions of dollars from the public treasury, a party could pursue extremist or outworn aims year after year simply because it would not have to go to the people for financial support. In areas that are predominantly Democratic or Republican, candidates of the less- favored party would receive tax funds vastly disproportionate to their popular support."

We find Sen. William's views persuasive. Rather than institute a sweeping campaign financing change in a moment of emotional reaction, we would prefer to see the present private system of contributions toughtened and altered where necessary. If campaign funding laws that are already on the books were enforced, there would be little need for substantial change.

A FAMILY ROOM OUTDOORS

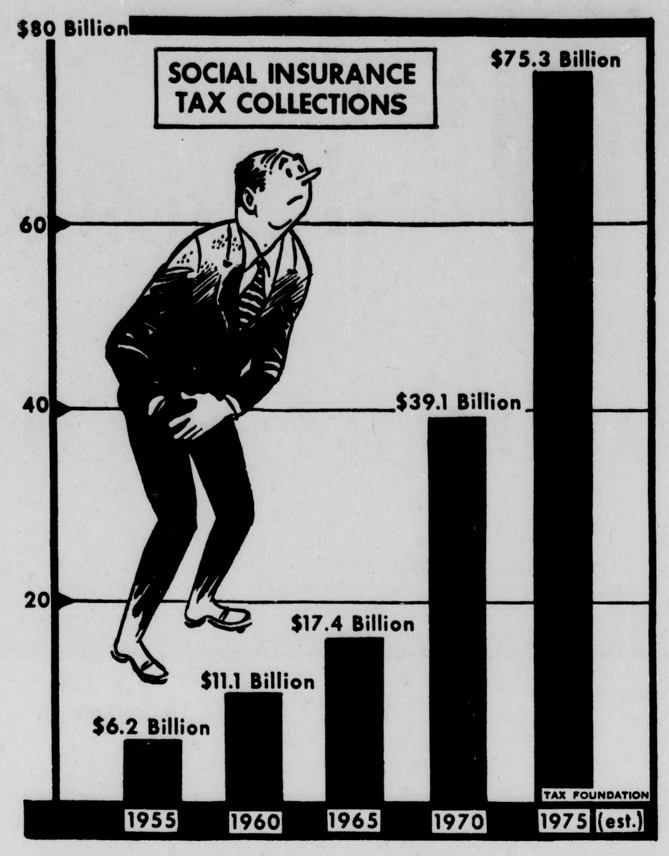
Looking ahead to a summer we all will be traveling less and staying at home more, the people of the American Association of Nurserymen suggest this may be a good time to consider designing a family room outdoors. What they are talking about is something more than the traditional patio (although it may be an extension of that concept) because it should be planned to accommodate much more family activity.

"Consider all the different things you do in the indoor family room," the nursery people say, "and decide how they can be moved to an outdoor room. It's a place for relaxation, of course, with comfortable furnishings. It may be where television viewing takes place. It is the game room. And, on entertainment occasions, it is the party place." All of these functions, the nursery spokesmen point out, are easily and attractively moved outdoors with just a small amount of planning.

An important element, according to the nursery authorities, is the installation of some sort of "walls" or "partitions" to define the space of the outdoor family room. This, of course, is probably a hedge that keeps out unwelcome noise, provides privacy, freshens and cools the air with its own natural air conditioning. If you have space enough, a shade tree or a flowering tree here and there will be a smart addition. This may be a place, too, to put in some of your favorite flowers and plants, much in the same way you add pictures and brick-a-brac to decorate an indoor family room.

Have you been wanting to make a rock garden? Surely there will be a corner of the outdoor room where this could be appropriate. If you add a bird bath and bird feeder you will probably welcome some new wildlife guests. Be sure to include games in the arrangement — perhaps a badminton net just outside the room, maybe croquet, and, inside the outdoor family room a weather- resistant chess and checkerboard, space for a bridge table if that's your game, a dart board, whatever family fun you like.

Planning and preparing this kind of outdoor extension to the home is an enjoyable activity for most families, the nursery people find, and it is richly rewarding because the results become visible from the outset. Any reputable nursery garden center or landscape firm can provide all the advice, materials and assistance you may require.



Tax payments to finance rising costs of Federal social insurance programs—old age, survivors, disability, and hospital benefits—are expected to reach $75.3 billion in fiscal 1975, up by $7.8 billion from 1974 and 12 times their size in 1955. Since 1955 the maximum Social Security tax—employee and employer shares—has been raised 14 times, from $168 to $1,650 in 1975. Congressional increases in Social Security taxes since 1972 alone will boost tax payments by $17.1 billion, says Tax Foundation, Inc.

MAKE MINE VANILLA

The National Ice Cream Retailers Association has been meeting in Detroit in preparation for the summer season, firm in the belief that "the weak shall inherit the girth."

The big topic at such conventions is flavors. One chain already has mapped out its flavor schedule through the next six months. It begins with peach Mame (brandied peaches swirled through peace ice cream) for April; orange chocolate for May; lemon meringue pie for June; chilled strawberry sherbet and sangria ice for July; peanut butter and chocolate for August and banana nut bread for September.

The ice cream purveyors realize exotic flavors are not always successful. Some recall the fellow who destroyed himself trying to peddle spinach ice cream.

But they keep trying. One firm says it is coming out with something new for expectant mothers — dill pickle ice cream. Now there's a pregnant idea that really should be aborted.

HHH IS BACK

Hubert Humphrey's voice has been unusually still for the last few months. The man noted for his raspy, irrepressible oratory was struggling physically and spiritually with an illness that might have been cancer.

After undergoing radiation treatments for bladder tumors, the youthful exuberance that characterized his political career was beaten down by excruciating pain. "You go throw the most awful spasms that are just beyond human comprehension," he recalled.

But the pain is over. Humphrey is back at work, feeling fine. The vigor has returned to his voice. The conscientiousness and decency that have earned him respect, even among those who have not agreed with his point of view, are still much in evidence. We hope he is able to serve his country many more years.

WORKINGS OF AN IDLE MIND

I hate to admit it, but presidential critics aren't what they used to be.

Oh, politicians flatter us by calling us the scourge of the republic and saying that we're tearing down our sacred institutions but, if the truth were known, we're not a patch on our predecessors.

A friend sent me a couple of quotations from H. L. Mencken, written in the '70's to prove the point.

The first was inspired by President Harding's inaugural address. Upon hearing it, Mencken wrote:

"It reminds me of a string of wet sponges." And of the crowd who responded favorably to it, Mencke said it was the kind of crowd that Harding was used to ...

"... To wit, an audience of small town yokels, or low political serfs, or morons scarcely able to understand a word of more than two syllables, and wholly unable to pursue a logical idea for more than two centimeters ... What it wants is simply a loud burble of words, a procession of phrases that roar, a series of whoops."

Now that, certainly, is much sterner stuff than has been meted out by the most recent crops of nattering nabobs.

And then, when Harding died and Calvin Coolidge took over, Mencken called him "... simply a cheap and trashy fellow, deficient in sense and almost devoid of any notion of honor — in brief, a dreadful little cad."

And that even before he had done anything! But, Mencken knew he never would do anything. He wrote:

'The four years of Coolidge will be four years of peurile and putrid politics. The very worst elements in the Republican Party, already corrupt beyond redemption, will be in the saddle, and full of intelligent self- interest. It will be a debauch of grab.

"And it will be followed by a revolt that will make the cautious radicalism of Dr. La Follette appear almost like the gospel of Rotary. Let the friends of safety paste that in their hats. They are trying to put out a fire by squirting gasoline upon it."

Such vitriol humbles one who aspires to follow in the master's footsteps.

Not even the death of an antagonist could soften Mencken's harsh judgment. After William Jennings Bryan died, following his public humiliation at the hands of Clarence Darrow in the scopes "Monkey Trial," Mencken had this to say of him:

"This talk of sincerity, I confess fatigues me. If the fellow was sincere, then so was P. T. Barnum. The word is disgraced and degraded by such uses.

"He was, in fact, a charlatan, a montebank, a zany without sense or dignity. His career brought him into contact with the first men of his time; he preferred the company of rustic ignoramuses. It was hard to believe, watching him at Dayton, that he had traveled, that he had been received in civilized socieites, that he had been a high officer of state.

He seemed only a poor clod like those around him, deluded by a childish theology, full of an almost pathological hatred of all learning, all human dignity, all beauty, all fine and nobel things. He was a peasant come home to the barnyard.

"Imagine a gentleman, and you have imagined everything that he was not. What animated him from end to end of his grotesque career was simply ambition — the ambition of a common man to get his hand upon the collar of his superiors, or, failing that, to get his thumb into their eyes.

"He was born with a roaring voice, and it had the trick of inflaming half-wits. His whole career was devoted to raising those half-wits again t their betters, that he himslef might shine."

Let the thugs we elect to high national office scream about their critics. They can count themselves fortunate that H. L. Mencken isn't around to put his jeweler's eye to their defects.

Rumor of the week — Republicans are said to be very anxious for President Nixon to campaign for congressional candidates this fall. Democratic congressional candidates.

ENVIRONMENTAL GUERRILLA WARFARE

Pollution control measures enacted at the local level, without regard to the demands such measures will make on neighboring regions, are likely to invite retaliation. California provided an illustration of what could happen when a proposal was placed upon the California ballot calling for a five- year moratorium on the production of nuclear electric energy in the state and other stringent environmental controls. Congressman Mike McCormack of Washington State, noting the California measure, indicated that he would introduce legislation "which would prohibit the importation of electricity into any state that outlaws the production of electricity by any conventional method, including but not limited to nuclear power plants licensed by the Atomic Energy Commission." He said the California measure would mean that "... California would have to import electricity generated in other states and the other states would have to accept whatever pollution was associated with that generation."

This incident shows the lengths to which the environmental crusade can be carried. Congressman McCormack proposes that when the people of an area elect to prohibit local resource development as part of the task of meeting nationwide energy requirements, they should be enjoined from benefitting from energy produced elsewhere. Such a stricture would soon put an end to the local practice of trying to create islands of environmental purity at the expense of neighbors. On the other hand, if a region was determined to revert to "the good old days", it might become a first class tourist attraction. It would be quite an experience to visit a state like California if it should return to the candle lit cradle of early statehood - to the days of no refrigeration, no air conditioning, no electric lights, no power, darkened hospitals and the total serenity of immobilization -- if not starvation.

TO RUSSIA A TERRIBLE JUSTICE IS DUE

A scandal like Watergate could never happen in the Soviet Union — happen and be exposed to an indignant public, that is.

For one thing, it requires rival political parties. An independent judiciary and legislative branch and a long tradition of adherence to the rule of law are essential ingredients. Not least of all, it demands a free and alert press. None of these things have the Russian people ever enjoyed, either under the czars or the commissars.

The Kremlin might well wish that a "Watergate" was all that it had to contend with, however. A scandal of such monumental dimensions that the word is a pitifully inadequate label, a scandal long festering beneath the surface of Soviet life, has broken into the open with the publication in Paris of a new book by Nobel laureate Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn. It makes Watergate look like a harmless cabal among kindergartners.

The revelations and indictments contained in Solzhenitsyn's "The Gulag Archipelago, 1918-1956," go beyond those he has already written about in his other quasi-fictitious books based on his 11 years' experience as a political prisoner and exile, such as "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovitch."

In his new book, which may be his crowning life's work, Solzhenitsyn names real names of those involved, both as victims and as authorities, in the Gulag — Joseph Stalin's labor camp network.

The Kremlin faces a double dilemma: how to prevent the revelations from inevitably filtering back to the Russian public, among whom exist thousands of survivors of Stalinera terror longing for some kind of justice; and how to punish Solzhenitsyn without arousing an outcry in the outside world and causing reprecussions that could adversely affect the U. S. - Soviet detente.

It is — again to speak in wholly inadequate terms — reminiscent of the Pentagon Papers affair in this country.

While the Nixon administration had nothing to do with the initial involvement in Vietnam and the papers held little that reflected on it and much that was already on the public record, it felt it necessary to attempt to squelch their publication in the interests of "national security," and in so doing took extra- legal steps that proved much more disastrous than the publication itself.

There, of course, the comparison ends. The present Soviet leaders are the direct heirs of one of the most vicious tyranies the world has ever seen, a tyranny which fed on its own children, torture or brutal imprisonment.

Even though it may have abolished some of the worst aspects of that tyranny, for the Kremlin now to permit its victims to come forward and tell the whole story, to permit trials of the officials involved, some of whom still hold positions of authority, would be to shake the Soviet Union to its very foundations.

Doubts that some Americans may have about the fundamental justice of their system of government fade into nothingness alongside the implications for Russia in "The Gulag Archipelago."

Americans have all kinds of remedies for Watergate, including the right to throw the rascale out in the next election if not sooner.

When justice comes to Russia, it will be a terrible thing to behold. And the more it is repressed, the longer it is delayed, the more terrible it will be.

THOUGHTS PROMPTED BY KOHOUTEK

The only trouble with the "comet of the century" was that they forgot to specify which century.

The sad news for all of us who had hoped to get a look at our very first real, live, naked-eye comet is that seldom in the annals of astronomy have so many become so excited for so little reason.

At a time when Kohoutek was supposed to be at its most spectacular, even astronomers with high - powered telescopes are having trouble locating it as it begins receding into the vast outer reaches of the solar system where comets dwell. They say it began its journey 75,000 years ago. One might well ask, "Was this trip necessary?"

A book now on the newsstand proclaims on its cover that "The world's most spectacular new comet has arrived! Is it a messenger of doom from outer space or a scientific clue to the birth of our universe?"

You don't have to read the book to know that Kohoutek is both of these things. The only trouble with the messenger part is that, as noted above, the time element is a little hazy. Those members of the Children of God who carried signs in front of the United Nations announcing the end of the world coincident with Kohoutek's arrival weren't wrong, just premature.

For the cometologists, Kohoutek was indeed a notable event. It was probably the best - studied comet of all time, and certainly the first one to be directly observed and photographed in space itself, by the astronauts aboard Skylab 3.

As far as the rest of us are concerned, however, we will have to wait until 1986 for a comet worth getting up from the television set and stepping outside to see. This is when Halley's comet is due to return, and it has been a faithful crowd-pleaser since at least a couple centuries B. C. (although back then they didn't know it belonged to Mr. Halley).

But speaking of modern and ancient forms of entertainment, this business about Kohoutek reminds us how very, very distant we are psychologically from our early ancestors.

For those who have never seen a comet and probably never will, it is hard to believe tha kings once trembled when one was sighted. Those whose knowledge of the stars is limited to picking out the Big Dipper find it difficult to understand how the ancients could have people the firmament with the figures of gods and animals.

Ancient man was much closer to the sky then we, who have made it just another highway for our machines.

If the Christmas Star were to appear again, how many of us would be "abiding in the fields" and see it? Even if we saw it, how many of us would have the wisdom to follow it?

THE FOLLY OF THE EXPORT— IMPORT BANK

The Export- Import Bank (Eximbank) made direct loans of $2.4 billion in fiscal year 1973. Eximbank is operated in such a way that U. S. exporters and foreign buyers gain while the U. S. taxpayer loses.

If a U. S. exporter wants to sell abroad, he arranges an Eximbank loan to the foreign buyer. The U. S. exporter is promptly paid in dollars, and the foreign importer gets a subsidized interest rate. Eximbank charges 6 per cent interest, while the prime rate in the U. S. is at 10 or even 12 per cent interest. The interest subsidy is paid by Treasury grants to the Eximbank. In other words, it is paid by the taxpayer. If the foreign buyer defaults, the taxpayer takes the loss, not the U. S. company that made the sale.

This is bad economics. Government officials are in no position to evaluate the risks of international trade. This judgment should be made by the company that wants to make the sale. Then that company should extend credit at whatever rates of interest it believes are economically sound or insist that the foreign buyer find his own financing. Government involvement simply creates an artificial situation which encourages sales to bad credit risks.

Eximbank also engages in bad politics. One of its major loans in 1973 was to finance a Soviet truck factory. This factory is building trucks which could be used in warfare against innocent countries and even against the United States itself.

Nothing is gained by government subsidies of foreign purchases. The Export-Import Bank should be phased out. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

House Probers Rap Nixon On Misuse of Public Funds

WASHINGTON-- In a sizzling, secret report which Republicans are fighting to suppress, House investigators have charged that President Nixon has spent $17 million in public funds on his private estates.

The report lashes the responsible government agencies for their cavalier spending and calls upon them to "seek restitution" of the "unauthorized expenditures."

"(They) have abused the discretion given them," charges the report. "They have permitted public funds to be used to procure nonsecurity items. They have permitted non- government personnel to commit federal government funds. They have abandoned fiscal responsibility...."

The Secret Service is singled out for allowing President Nixon to improve his private property in the name of security. This "has tarnished the image of a once highly respected organization," declares the report.

The cost of providing protection on private presidential property has soared, states the report, "from practically nothing during the Roosevelt- Truman era to more than $17 million during the first five years of the Nixon Administration. This is more than the combined salaries of all United States Presidents."

President Nixon is lectured for "imposing burdens on the taxpayers of the nation. Maintaining private residences for use a few days each year," scolds the report, "imposes a heavy burden on the public treasury....

"Funds needed to provide presidential security should be, have been and are really available. However, every dollar that is diverted into nonsecurity expenditures under this program is a dollar that is not then available to provide needed additional security."

This is the latest word on a scandal we pried open on Oct. 3, 1972, when we reported that the taxpayers were financing improvements at President Nixon's San Clemente estate. A House subcommittee, headed by Rep. Jack Brooks, D- Tex., conducted an exhaustive investigation.

The findings were approved by the Democrats but rejected by the Republicans, who have now produced their own report. We have obtained bootleg copies of both versions. The differences are quite revealing:

-- The Republican version completely ignores the question of paying the taxpayers back for "unauthorized expenditures" on President Nixon's San Clemente and Key Biscayne property. Yet the Joint Taxation Committee, which investigated Mr. Nixon's tax returns, counted these expenditures as extra income and ruled that the President owed taxes on them.

-- The Republican draft doesn't mention the $17 million-- $9.2 million at San Clemente and $7.8 million at Key Biscayne-- that the Brooks' report claims the government spent on the two estates. The Republicans speak instead of $700,000 that the President spent on his San Clemente house and brush off the rest casually as "additional expenditures of federal money."

-- The Republican version deletes evidence that the Nixons personally ran up the government gardening bill at Key Biscayne. Referring to the Nixons as "our clients," a General Services Administration memo reports that they "had visited Key Biscayne and some changes had been made in the landscaping plan." This resulted in a $4,685.70 increase in the original bill. -- The Republican report also treats as routine the installation of an exhaust fan in the fireplace of the President's San Clemente den. Not mentioned is a memo from the secretary to President Nixon's attorney, Herb Kalmbach, reporting that the Secret Service had agreed to "pay off the installation of the fireplace fan after I informed him (the agent in charge) that it definitely was placed for security reason and how would he like it if you know who was aspixiated (sic)."

-- The GOP version doesn't make clear that the taxpayers shelled out $5,300 for the installation and purchase of 13 lanterns to light and beautify the presidential grounds. Four are still being stored in a warehouse.

-- The two versions disagree over a $1,666.90 bill which presidential crony Robert Abplanalp submitted to the GSA for repairs and painting on houses in the President's Key Biscayne compound. The Brooks report notes that "nothing in GSA's records indicates under what authority Mr. Abplanalp had acted in contracting for work for which GSA assumed responsibility." More charitably, the Republicans conclude that Abplanalp had acted in "a good faith manner."

-- At San Clemente, the government shelled out $57,582 for a wall to encircle the 26 acres of land which the President originally purchased. He later sold all but six acres to Abplanalp. Yet the Brooks report notes that "no effort was made to reimburse the federal government in any way." Defending the President, the Republican draft argues that Nixon didn't benefit from the wall.

-- Both reports agree that the President paid only $1,043 for paving at San Clemente while the taxpayers wound up with a $21,044 bill. The Brooks report cites a memo from the President's architect, Hal Lynch, suggesting the paving cost "be shared equally by the contractor, General Services and the Secret Service." The GOP document prefered to view the paving as serving "a protective purpose or incident to other protective work."

MEDIA MISFIRE: A gadfly group, which calls itself "Accuracy in Media," has been taking potshots at the press in the name of accuracy. Its own accuracy has been so slipshod, however, that few editors pay attention to it.

In a recent blast, for example, the group accused us and other newsmen of falsely reporting that Graham Martin, the U. S. ambassador to Saigon, had urged the State Department to deny "honest and detailed" answers on Indochina to Sen. Ted Kennedy, D- Mass.

Since this information came right out of Martin's confidential cable to the State Department, we were curious where in the world "Accuracy in Media" got the idea our story was false.

The attack on us, we learned, was written by a Federal Reserve employe named Reed Irvine who acts as the group's chairman. His effort was processed by the operational chief, Abraham Kalish, who admitted he didn't have a copy of Martin's cable for reference at the time he okayed Irvine's attack.

"Not even we are 100 per cent perfect." Kalish admitted.

Thieves take items valued at $4,500

RISCO — Thieves hit A & C Irrigation and Tractor Sales on Highway 62 sometime Monday night and stole items valued at $4,500. The same thieves also are believed to have been involved in the theft the same night of two power cylinders valued at $300 from the Greg Halford farm one-half mile west of the irrigation and tractor business, according to New Madrid County Deputy Sheriff Bo Wingo.

Items stolen at the A & C firm included pumps, engines, a large assortment of tools, cutting torches and tanks, 10 new truck tires and seven five-gallon cans of a farm chemical.

Wingo said a lock was broken off a north door to get into a building and then a bolt cutter was used to break a lock off a gate to enter a fenced area where several three - horsepower engines for irrigation pumps were stolen.

At the Halford farm, one of the power cylinders was removed from a disc and the other was taken from a farm trailer.

Woman injured in bus accident

One woman received minor injuries early today when the pickup truck in which she was riding was involved in an accident with a Sikeston R- 6 School District bus on Tanner Road near the Mini- Farms north of town.

The accident occurred at 7:10 a.m., according to the highway patrol, when a pickup driven by Floyd McMullin, 77, of Morehouse attempted to pass the school bus.

The driver of the bus attempted to make a left turn just as the pickup started around. Both vehicles were eastbound at the time of the accident.

Injured in the accident was McMullin's wife, Edith, 76. She was treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for minor injuries. McMullin and the driver of the school bus, Edward Green of Sikeston, were not injured.

The bus had just begun its morning route and had picked up only three or four children. None of the children was injured.

The fastest land speed by a wheeled vehicle was achieved by the "Blue Flame," powered by a liquid natural gas motor. Gary Gabelich averaged 622.407 miles per hour in two runs on the Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, on Oct. 23, 1970, The World Almanac says.

Grain Market

On the opening, Chicago wheat was 1 to 7 cents a bushel lower, May 3.83; Gulf hard red wheat was not traded; corn was 1 to 2¾ lower, May 2.75; oats were unchanged to 2½ lower, May 1.28½ and soybeans were unchanged to 5 lower, May 5.43.

Visitors rob woman when she leaves room

Several items were stolen early this morning from the Pat Miller apartment, 534 Matthews Ave.

Police said the Miller woman told them she let a man she knew into her apartment about 1:30 a.m. and he brought in some other people who were strangers.

The woman said they sat and talked for awhile, then about 4 a.m. she left the room for a few minutes. When she returned she said the people and the items were gone.

Taken were a transistor radio worth $20, a pillow case, $8 worth of groceries, a Social Security card, 10 dish rags, a bottle of shampoo, one bottle of dish washing soap, a brassiere and a can of hair spray.

The bra and a wig, also taken from the apartment, were found by police at the corner of South Main Street and Matthews.

THE KING'S CAVALIER
by Samuel Shellabarger
(Avon 17442/$1.50
378 pp.)

The setting for Samuel Shellabarger's historical novel THE KING'S CAVALIER, a January Avon paperback title, is the 16th century struggle between Francis I, the king of France, and Charles Duke of Bourbon. The hero is Blaise de Lalliere, who chooses to serve the king rather than to join his father's plot against him, and then falls in love with the fiance of the chief agent of the Duke of Bourbon. The Christian Science Monitor has called THE KING'S CAVALIER "romance in the best Dumas tradition."

LOOKING BACK: A Chronicle of Growing Up Old in the Sixties
by Joyce Maynard
157 pp.)

In a cover story for The New York Times Magazine last year, Joyce Maynard, then a Yale sophomore, "looked back" on the first 18 years of her life. The article was much-talked- about and, several months later, Doubleday published her autobiography: LOOKING BACK: A Chronicle of Growing Up Old in the Sixties.

District sewing winners named

DONIPHAN — "A Tisket, A Tasket, From a Sewing Basket", was the theme of the 14th annual Missouri Sew With Cotton program Saturday at Doniphan Junior High School which featured competition among girls from the state's eight cotton producing counties.

Norman Bartmess of Kennett presided over the day's activities.

Mrs. Elsie Boaz, executive director of Patricia Stevens Finishing and Career School at Memphis, Tenn., gave contestants training in modeling. Mrs. Tica Camp, home economics instructor at Campbell High School, presented an educational program for girls not participating in the contest, entitled "Fashion Can Be Fun". Two of her students assisted her with the presentation.

Mrs. Velda Rankin, associate professor and state textiles and clothing specialist for the University of Missouri Extension Division, and Miss Charline Lindsay, state youth and 4-H specialist, presented programs for the adults, entitled "Fashion and Design" and "Getting It All Together".

Ann Landers

Widow sad she moved in with children

Dear Ann Landers: Every now and then you rerun a letter because someone thinks it should be repeated not only for those who didn't see it the first time, but for those who saw it and didn't pay any attention. I am in the second category, and now I'm paying the price for my stupidity.

The letter was from a woman, who, when her husband died, moved in with her daughter and son- in- law. That widow, strangely enough, made exactly the same mistake I did. Please, Ann, hunt up the letter and rerun it for those for whom it is not too late. Bless you.-- Sad And Sorry

Dear Sorry: Here's the letter and I agree, it's one that bears repeating.

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from the widow who sold her lovely house and moved in with her daughter. She wrote: "It was the biggest mistake of my life. I am now a guest in somebody else's home."

She's lucky. I made the same mistake, but I'm no guest-- I'm a maid and a laundress, a nurse, a gardener, a short- order cook and an answering service. I am not suggesting this is what my daughter and son- in- law had in mind when they begged me to move in with them. They were truly concerned that I would be lonely. But you know the old saying, "The road to hell is paved with good intentions."

I work harder now than I ever did in my own home. There are four children here and the music is so loud I have three- day headaches. I am under tension constantly because I try so hard to avoid expressing an opinion. I'm afraid I might be accused of "taking sides" or "interfering"-- the cardinals sins of old people.

It was sheer folly for me to give up my own home. If this letter helps just one widow make up her mind, it will be worth the pain I suffered to write it. (P. S. Where were you three years ago, Ann, when I needed you?)-- Sacramento

Dear Sac.: I was right here three years ago, giving the same advice. You probably read it but it meant nothing to you because you weren't a widow then and the problem was of no interest. Hindsight has 20-20 vision.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the middle kid and Lord only knows how much I hate that phrase. Here are a few of the reasons.

1. Your relatives think the oldest one is very smart and the youngest one is just darling. Notice the one who is left out.

2. The oldest kid was allowed to go to the fair by himself. The youngest one was too young to go by himself so Mom asked the neighbors to take him when they took their own kid who is his age. Notice again who got left out.

3. The teachers at school keep wanting to know how come I am not as smart as my older brother. They have also hinted that when my younger brother gets my age, he will be smarter than I am.

I am fed up with the whole scene and I wish you would help me out by printing my letter. I know you can't change my place in the family, but maybe certain people will see my letter and lay off. Thanks a lot, Miss Landers.-- Kid In The Middle

Dear Kid: Here's your letter and I certainly hope "certain people" will see it and lay off. Relatives are sometimes a little stupid, but teachers should know better than to compare a kid with his brother-- older OR younger. Good luck to you in the future.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

722 Park
Sikeston, Mo
April 21, 1974

Dear Mr. Blanton,

Due to the deletion of some important names in the article on our Annual Easter Egg Hunt, the Junior Woman's Club would once again like to use your paper for some public 'thank- you's."

Our hunt this year was a big success not only for us, but for the hundreds of small fry who entered. It is certainly a collective effort. The eggs were all donated by local grocery stores. We are indebted to : Sikeston IGA, Wades, Zieglers, Barketts', Lindsey's M&H, Hornbacks, Learue-McKinney, Marks, Liberty, Pardon's, Proffers, and Quik Sak. They provided us with 144 dozen eggs which we colored beautifully with dye provided by Malone & Hyde. This fine company continued to support our hunt with a check used to purchase all the prizes for category winners. We also had some outstanding help from Sgt. Joe Sherrard, who started each hunt and was our "rule-keeper."

To all the firms and individuals concerned, the Sikeston Junior Womans Club extends a a sincere "Thank-You."

Kay Piel
Corres. Sec.

On Friday, February 15, 1974 a conference was held with Representative Bill Burlison of Missouri's Tenth Congressional District at the Crystal City, Mo. Headquarters. Several representing the Jefferson County area shared their viewpoint on the Pro- Life Movement. Rep. Burlison would not commit himself to the anti- abortion movement.

Whatever reasons Congressman Burlison may give for his not signing the Hogan Discharge Petition does NOT endorse him as a Pro- Life legislator.

This is a basic human life issue where a selective group have been denied their right to live by the liberalized abortion law. The Supreme Court did not recognize the fetus as a person. Legal personhood according to our law means having "human life." Not even the supporters of abortion will deny that the fetus is human life. Abortion destroys human life. It is only through our legislators that the unborn can be guaranteed their right to life.

Citizens in the Tenth District should be aware of each and every candidate's position on abortion carefully choosing those that will protect the lives of our unborn.

Oldest SeMo alumni sought by committee

CAPE GIRARDEAU — "Mirror, mirror, on the wall, who's the fairest of them all?" That's the question Snow White's stepmother asked her magic looking glass.

Southeast Missouri State University's centennial honors and awards committee is also asking questions these days. Members, however, are not looking to a magic mirror for the answers, but instead ot the university's alumni and the general public.

The committee, chaired by Dr. David Strand, is seeking to identify the oldest and earliest living alumni of the institution -- the oldest in terms of age and the earliest in terms of year of enrollment.

Dr. Strand, who is dean of the university, said two alumni in their 90s were identified duringthe centennial homecoming last October and are currently the leaders in the "longevity department."

They are Francis E. Cureton of Salem, Mo., who is 94 and attended the university in 1905- 1906, and Mrs. Alex C. Vasterling of Cape Girardeau, 93, who was enrolled in 1897.

The dean asks anyone knowing living graduates or former students who are either older or were enrolled earlier than Cureton and Mrs. Vasterling to pass the information along to him.

Once the oldest and earliest alumni are identified, they will receive plaques embossed with the university's centennial seal and will be otherwise recognized by Southeast Missouri State.

Kennett man charged with fatal shooting

KENNETT — A second degree murder charge against Robert Oakley, 49, of Kennett, was filed Friday afternoon by Pros. Atty. Charles H. Baker in connection wth the fatal shooting of Oakley's neighbor, David Chandler, 29, formerly of Senath.

Oakley was arraigned Tuesday in Dunklin County Magistrate Court and preliminary hearing was set for May 13 by Judge Leon McAnally, who set bond at $12,000.

Chandler was allegedly shot by Oakley after he went to Oakley's house trailer, next door to his, late last week, allegedly cursing the defendant and questioning him about watching him.

Oakley called police immediately after the incident, stating his gun fired accidentally, wounding Chandler in the lower neck. Chandler died shortly afterwards at Dunklin County Memorial Hospital.

Expo '74 to open Saturday

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Expo '74 is ready for Saturday's opening of a 184-day run.

Dedicated to "celebrating tomorrow's fresh new environment," it features exhibits of 10 foreign nations and 35 commercial and institutional sponsors. All are geared in some way to the environmental theme.

An estimated 50,000 persons will be on hand for opening day ceremonies, including President and Mrs. Nixon, Commerce Secretary Frederick Dent, and entertainer Danny Kaye.

It has been described as an example of how to make urban life work, but some critics have called it an ecological disgrace.

Human rights board to meet

The board of commissioners of the Missouri Commission on Human Rights will meet Friday at 7:30 p.m. in a meeting open to the public at Holiday Inn.

Some members of the commission staff will also be present.

My personal opinion is that American students do not always use these good conditions they have. Students have an easy life and perhaps they are too accustomed to it.

Story of future starts Friday

"Zardoz", a story of the 23rd Century, written, produced and directed by John Boorman and starring Sean Connery, premieres Friday at Malco Twin Cinema I in Midtowner Village Shopping Center.

The 20th Century- Fox release co- stars Charlotte Rampling, Sara Kestelman and John Alderton.

Boorman's epic vision of the future is set in the year 2293 when the world is divided into two parts. One is a technologically perfect society peopled by an elite group of scientists. The other is a society of near savages living in the remains of war and pollution.

The two worlds collide in an explosive and dramatic confrontation when a mysterious outsider, Zed, portrayed by Connery, invades the Eternals' sheltered commune.

That is the story in purely basic terms, but Boorman has contrived a wealth of elaboration for his first film since the acclaimed "Deliverance".

For example, the Vortex people have solved the problem of mortality and are now faced with the problem of eternal life. Among their social misfits are the Apathetics, a sick segment of society for whom everlasting life has proved too heavy a burden.

There are, too, the Renegades, individuals whose misdemeanors have earned them the only punishment possible in a world where there is no death-- aging. Thus the Renegades live on in an eternal senility even though life is both painful and better to them.

The most incisive elaboration of all is the fact that the Immortals of the Vortex are emotionally sterile: they live an ethereal life of the spirit far beyond the experience of physical love.

The gods of man, instruments of government and repression, are unacceptable; sexual activity is both intellectually demeaning and socially undesirable in a society where computers are programmed to sustain and, if need be, to recreate the life of the members.

Sadly depleted by renegadism and apathy, the Vortex was forced to look outside for supplies of food. But in the Outlands were only Brutals— wretched survivors of a decimated and polluted world. A god named Zardoz was created to keep them in line.

Library cards aid businessmen

Library cards that help businessmen keep their books straight form the heart of a new business machine now available at Superior Business Machines, Inc., 112 E. Center St.

The magnetic cards are used in a library of more than 200 programs for Victor Comptometer Corporation's new line of desktop programable printing calculators, according to Mike Buchanan, salesman.

A Victor- made magnetic card reader/ recorder on the calculator permits permanent storage of programs and data that can be read into the calculator in seconds.

"Victor has the first programable calculator that aims at the business-commercial market," Buchanan stated. The calculators will also serve the engineering and statistical fields, he added.

They offer data and program storage capabilities formerly available only on calculators selling for much more, according to Buchanan.

The Series 4000 is the smallest, fastest, simplest, lowest priced programable printing calculator on the market, Buchanan said.

The new line employs the same MOS/LSI circuitry used in Victor's family of conventional desktop calculators.

The units look and operate like standard electronic calculators.

"Although we will serve basically our traditional calculator customers with this product we will now be able to handle a whole new range of complex applications and problems," Buchanan said.

Computer- like decision making capabilities provide symbolic jumping, looping and subroutines.

The four models range in capability up to 1000 program steps and over 100 storage registers.

A high- speed matrix printer prints up to five lines or 110 large and legible characters per second with 14 digit capacity.

More college couples living together on campus

At Beloit College in Wisconsin, 19-year-old Charlie and his girlfriend, Sue, have pushed their single beds together. They've lived in her dorm room for almost a year.

A 21-year-old athlete and his sophomore girlfriend at the University of Louisville in Kentucky have lived in her dorm room since last summer. They rely on their friends not to snitch on them and on a resident adviser who agrees to look the other way.

The college couples are among hundreds of students from Boston to Berkeley — and a lot more conservative places in between — who are living together on campus.

Most of them insist it's no big deal and that seems to sum up the general attitude. The couples, however, requested anonymity, citing possible sanctions or embarrasment for parents.

Interviews with scores of students and administrators at more than a dozen colleges and universities across the country indicate that although living together is rarely discussed in the college catalogue, it's become a popular way of life for some on campus.

It isn't as widespread as the "going steady" craze of the 1950s and early '60s, but almost all students interviewed could name at least two or three couples living together on campus. They saw nothing wrong with it.

The trend raised many eyebrows among parents, alumni and school officials when it appeared in the mid-60s and there was public outcry about campuses becoming dens of dope and sex. But most of that has disappeared.

"Most couples living together in the Harvard dorm have a very serious relationship," said a graduate student assigned as resident adviser to one dormitory, or "house" as it's called at Harvard. "It's a very acceptable thing."

"It's ordinary," said a Harvard housing official. "I don't know how the university could intrude. You couldn't possibly do a thing like bed checks."

When today's seniors were freshmen, living together — regularly spending the night on campus with someone of the opposite sex — was taboo at most schools, including Harvard. If caught, they could have been expelled. These days, it's not so risky.

None of the couples living together on campus had been assigned to the same room by the college. In fact, most use both rooms for the sake of appearance, mail, more storage space — and privacy when they want it.

"He only sleeps here when my roommate is away," said a chubby freshman at Indiana University. "But we eat together, study together and think about getting married some time, but not right away."

Her boyfriend reached over and took her hand. "As far as personal relations are concerned," he said, "you can learn a lot about each other this way. You can cope with problems better and understand each other better. It was a long time after we began spending most of our time together that we thought about sex, four or five months. Our relationship isn't just to sleep together."

College administrators, with an eye on possible public relations problems with the state, community, parents and alumni, said schools try to offer students a choice of living arrangements, ranging from one-sex corridors where someone of the opposite sex dare not tread, to dormitories allowing complete freedom.

"For a whole set of reasons, you're dealing with a very diverse group of students in terms of levels of maturity, past experience, personal needs and hometown environment," said Thomas C. Schreck, dean of students at Indiana where students can choose dorms with closed, limited or open visitation policies. "If you try to force them all into a set mold, you're not addressing yourself to the differences people possess."

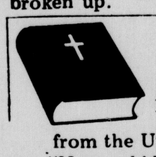
A study of 482 member institutions of the Association of College and University Housing Officers shows that 70 per cent of the nation's colleges offer some type of co-ed housing to students. Only 15 per cent of the schools offer men and women rooms on the same floor or in the same suite. The study was produced by David A. DeCoster, an assistant dean of students in charge of residence life at Indiana. He said there is no evidence that co-ed housing or visitation has increased sexual activity among students.

"Literature shows that attitudes have changed dramatically in a liberal direction," said DeCoster, who is recognized by many college and university officials as an expert on campus housing. "They are more accepting of peer behavior. But there is no documentation that there are differences in their own behavior. And there is a false interpretation that liberal attitudes mean liberal behavior."

Don, a 22-year-old senior at Tufts College in Medford, Mass., agreed.

"This idea that everyone has lost his virginity at the age of 10 isn't true," he said. "A lot of people here haven't had intercourse by the time they're seniors. Everybody puts on a big show.

"But for those who do choose to start a relationship, it isn't scandalous. It isn't talked about. It's accepted." Don said he had lived with a girl in his dormitory for several months, but they had broken up.



Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

"Now abide faith, hope, love, these three; but the greatest of these is love." (Corinthians 13:13)

PRAYER: Lork, please give me the presence of mind and courage to use the right keys to open doors of opportunity and challenge this day. In Jesus' name. Amen.

What's the law?

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Carol and Betty were a pair of good looking dolls who wanted to play house...with each other. Consequently, they tiptoed off to city hall where they applied for a marriage license. The clerk, however, was a pretty straight- laced sort of individual and when he stopped sneering long enough, he told them he wasn't going to give them one.

Outraged, the two gals marched off to the nearest courthouse where they demanded that the clerk be ordered to give them the license.

"I won't do it," insisted the clerk. "It would be a waste of feminine pulchritude. These two good looking girls should be marrying men and not each other."

"He's got no choice," responded Carol and Betty. "To deny a person the right to marry or associate with someone is unconstitutional. It's also cruel and inhuman punishment. Consequently, he's got to issue the license."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order the clerk to issue the license to the dolls?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the relationship proposed by Carol and Betty did not authorize the issuance of a marriage license because what they proposed is not marriage. Nor can the refusal to issue the license, concluded the judge, be considered punishment.

Rowe officials reject union representation

POPLAR BLUFF — Officials of Rowe Furniture Corp. announced in a notice to employes today that the firm no longer recognizes Upholsterers International AFL-CIO Union or its agents, further stating that the union no longer has any legal status with the company.

The notice, signed by J. W. Sisson, assistant vice president and general manager of the Poplar Bluff plant, said the company is free to deal directly with employes concerning wages, hours and working conditions without any interference from any union representative.

The 343 plant employes have been on strike since July 1973. The notice said that for about eight months the company has heard nothing from the union representatives and, during this time, "circumstances arose which convinced us (Rowe) that the union no longer represented a majority of employes in this plant."

A charge against the company was filed with the National Labor Relations Board asserting that the company had violated the law in refusing to deal with the union. After a thorough investigation, however, the board rejected the union charge.

The union was voted in by employes four years ago with challenged votes upheld by the NLRB following a tie vote of 34-34. About 76 persons were employed at that time by the Poplar Bluff plant, which began operations five years ago.

was sent to the Governor, who considered it a priority item.

It increases penalties for violation of the law to a maximum fine of $10,000 and five years in jail. The measure was strongly backed by Revenue Director James Spradling, who said it would aid his department in pursuing tax evasion of all types.

—Also sent to the Governor was legislation cracking down on evasion of the motor fuel tax, which sponsors contended would save the state millions of dollars annually.

The bill is aimed at stopping the practive of using home heating oil to operate diesel trucks thereby avoiding the motor fuel tax.

Campbell woman killed in crash

A Campbell woman was killed and two persons were seriously injured in two area traffic accidents Tuesday and early today, according to highway patrol records, which show the fatality to be the 26th traffic death on Southeast Missouri roads this year, compared with a toll of 35 fatalities at the same time last year.

Lois Baxter, 36, was killed at 10:10 a.m. on Highway 53 on the St. Francis River bridge seven miles north of Campbell when her car crossed the center line and struck a bridge abutment. The victim had been married Saturday night, a patrol spokesman said.

Her body was taken to Landess Funeral Home in Campbell.

Two Illinois men were injured at 1:50 a.m. today in an accident one mile south of Perryville on Interstate 55.

James Patterson, 26, of Collinsville, Ill., and a passenger Eddie Dickerson, 21, of Fairmont City, Ill., were injured when a tire on the Patterson car blew out causing the car to run off the road and overturn several times.

Both were taken to Perry County Memorial Hospital in Perryville.

CONSERVATIONISTS SEE SUBSTITUTES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whale meat is still used for food, and whale oil goes into the manufacture of cosmetics, soap, shoe polish, margarine and other products. But with the great herds now gone, conservationists argue that substitute materials are available.

Inside the ears of the cats are tiny hairs that catch the most minute vibrations in the air, alerting the animal to movements even before it sees them.

Agitate Ky. derby favorite

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Trainer Jimmy Jimenez says, "I don't know if Agitate has run his best race yet."

And that could be bad news for a host of other trainers and owners who hope to win Saturday's 100th Kentucky Derby.

The Pennsylvania-bred colt who has campaigned in California is one of few 3-year-olds in the United States this year to go under 1:49 for 1 1-2 miles.

Agitate won the Bradbury Stakes by six lengths in 1:48 25, won the California Derby in 1:48 4-5 and also broke 1:49 when he finished third, less than a length out of first, in the Santa Anita Derby behind Destroyer, a Derby hopeful, and Aloha Mood, not in the Derby.

To make the Kentucky Derby his sixth victory in seven starts, Agitate, who did not race as a 2-year-old, will have to beat about 21 other 3-year-olds.

Entries for the 1¼-mile Derby at Churchill Downs will be made Thursday. A 22-horse field would equal the record set in 1928, when Reigh Count won, and would mean a gross purse of $319,000, with $267,500 to the winner.

Post time is 5:30 p.m., EDT. CBS will televise from 5 p.m.-6 p.m.

Agitate's toughest competition could come from the Woody Stephens-trained entry of Seth Hancock's Judger and John M. Olin's Cannonade and the Sigmund Sommer-owned pair of Rube The Great and Accipitar.

Judger, winner of the Florida Derby and Blue Grass Stakes, will be ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., who rode Agitate in all of his races except the California Derby. Pincay is committed to ride Judger, so the great Bill Shoemaker will ride Agitate.

Cannonade, winner of the Stepping Stone Purse, will be ridden by Angel Cordero Jr., while Miguel A. Rivera will be aboard Rube The Great, first in divisions of the Gotham and Wood Memorial, and Angel Santiago will ride Accipitar.

Other probables, and their riders, included Lexico, Gustavo Avila; Set N' Go, Bill Davidia; J.R.'s Pet, Darrell McHargue; Destroyer, Ismael Valenzuela; Sir Tristram, Bill Hartack; Pat McGroder, Tommy Barrow.

Buck's Bid, Don MacBeth; Confederate Yankee, Howard Grant; Flip Sal, Eddie Maple; Gold And Myrrh, Don Brumfield; Hudson County, Mike Micelli; Bold Clarion, Wayne Chambers; Consigliori, Darrel Brown, and Triple Crown, Braulio Baeza.

Bobby Ussery was expected to ride Little Current, while trainer Joe DiAngelo was still looking for a rider for Sharp Gary.

NMC'S biggest

John Higgerson of New Madrid claimed a 24 1/2 pound gobbler at 6 a.m. Saturday to record the largest out of 18 killed through Saturday in New Madrid County. The two- week season closes at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Hunting for an answer

SALEM — One young hunter in a school near here may not wind up valedictorian of his class, but he is certain to graduate with honors in outdoor education.

Tom Graham, Dent County conservation agent, says a teacher at the school swears the story is true. The teacher says that one of the questions on an elementary school test was to name the four seasons.

One youngster answered seriously, "Deer, turkey, squirrel and quail."

Keeping pace with dad

Horrell Townsend III of New Madrid scored on his first turkey hunt by bagging a 15- pound gobbler at 6:10 a.m. Saturday keeping pace with his dad, H. H. Townsend Jr. who bagged his turkey last Tuesday morning.

SHS stats impressive

With the baseball season rolling around to a close and district tournament action in full swing, the veteran Sikeston Bulldog team possesses some mighty impressive statistics. Just three of SHS's 14 opponents have been what you would call weak teams, yet the Bulldogs have hit well most of the time and now possess a .351 team batting average.

For those of you interested in streaks: Jim Saulter has now hit five homers in his last four games and has 14 r-b-i's in those contests. Sikeston catcher John Leible has proven that not only does he have a fine arm (he has thrown out 9 of 15 prospective stealers), but he can run also. The fleet Sikeston catcher has stolen 15 consecutive times this year to go along with his .417 average. He also leads the team in hits with 20 (in 48 trips) and is second in r-b-i's with 16. His total of 17 runs scored leads the team. Rick Eisenbach had two streaks broken against Fredricktown. Although he scored twice after walking, the Black Cats' hurler Mike Stevens broke Eisenbach's 11- game hitting streak. A fumbled grounder in the second stopped an errorless string at nine games.

The pitching has been less outstanding this year, wasting the stepped up run production. A staff e-r-a of 2.26 is about a run a game higher than it was last year. Righthander Kenny Stokes, the team's leading winner at 5-1, also leads in earned run average with an 0.96 mark. Mitchell Walker, with an 0.28 lifetime mark coming into this year, has pitched much better recently after a mid-season slump, and has dropped his mark down to 1.98. Rich Blankenship, who has actually had only one bad game (Poplar Bluff), also has his mark down to 2.6. Blankenship leads in strikeouts with 45 in his 31 innings. Stokes has fanned 43 in 29 frames. On the other hand, Sikeston batters have fanned just 7 times in the last three games.

McGlothen tames Braves

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Hammerin' Hank Aaron's 720th career home run failed to faze young St. Louis Cardinals righthander Lynn McGlothen Tuesday night.

What surprised the 24-year-old McGlothen, who tamed the Atlanta Braves 7-2 despite the wallop, was that Aaron hadn't connected earlier.

"He hit a fast ball out over the plate," confirmed McGlothen, who until Aaron connected had pitched a three-hit shutout.

"I'd been giving him fast balls all night," he added. "The first time up I don't know why he missed them but he did."

The recipient of a standing ovation during a pre-game ceremony, Aaron struck out ingloriously on a 2-2 McGlothen delivery in the second inning and fould out two innings later.

In the seventh, before he led off, the Cards had forged a 5-0 lead when the 40-year-old slugger again strolled to the plate.

Aaron worked the count to 21, then slammed a delivery on a line into his favorite territory well off the foul line and over the left field fence.

"He still amazes me," commented Braves Manager Eddie Matthews in respect to the wallop, Aaron's seventh among his 11 hits this season.

"Everyone by now has seen the replay of his 715th," Matthews added, "but we're still seeing them on the field. I'll never cease being amazed."

As prodigious as was the Aaron blast, however, a shot an inning later by the Cards' Lou Brock nearly dwarfed it.

The Braves' Buzz Capra walked Mike Tyson with one out and Cards reliever Al Hrabosky grounded into a force play before Brock teed off.

His 430-foot drive landed high in the right field bleachers and without the barrier the ball might have rolled into the nearby Mississippi River.

"It wasn't even coming down when it landed," marveled Cards Manager Red Schoendienst. "Aaron hit the heck out of the ball but Brock flattened it."

During the pre-game ceremony, Hall of Famer Stan Musial presented Aaron a plaque commemorating the Atlanta star's first major league homer.

Both Musial, whose National League record of 3,630 hits Aaron is chasing, and Schoendienst were Cardinals when Aaron connected off Vic Raschi here in April, 1954.

"A lot of good things have happened in 20 years," Aaron acknowledged. "I'm just grateful for the opportunities I've had."

Ling's first

Ricky Ling, 17, of New Madrid Route One marked his first turkey kill at 8:30 a.m. Friday near New Madrid with a 21- pound gobbler sporting an 8 3/4 inch beard. Ling's turkey was the fourth largest among 15 which have been registered at the State Conservation Commission, forestry division office at New Madrid since the season opened April 22. Doyle Hicks of Risco checked in a 24- pounder and Buck Hunter of New Madrid and Alfred Higgerson of Sicily Island, La. respectively claimed 23 and 22 pounders. (Daily Standard photo)

Lolich books first

The hard-hitting Kansas City Royals normally would look forward to facing a pitcher who's winless in four decisions and has allowed 5½ runs a game. But not when his name is Mickey Lolich.

"I hate to catch a guy who is 0-4 like Lolich was," said Kansas City Manager Jack McKeon. "You know that a good pitcher's going to win sooner or later. You just know it ...."

If McKeon was worried before the game, he was convinced afterwards. Lolich, working mostly with off-speed pitches, scattered eight hits as Detroit dumped the Royals 7-2. Aurelio Rodriguez keyed the Tiger attack with two singles, a double and two runs batted in.

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angels blasted the Boston Red Sox 166; the Cleveland Indians downed the Minnesota Twins 83; the Texas Rangers outlasted the Milwaukee Brewers 12-10; the New York Yankees edged the Oakland Athletics 4-3, and the Chicago White Sox shaded the Baltimore Orioles 2-1.

Lolich, a portly left-hander, has lost a little something off his fastball of late and has changed his style of pitching.

"I'm 33 so I throw a lot of sliders and a lot of knuckleballs. I had a good curve ball tonight but the velocity wasn't good," he said.

Angels 16, Red Sox 6

Fire-baller Nolan Ryan struck out a season-high 15 batters but his performance was marred by a fastball that got away in the first inning and hit Boston second baseman Doug Griffin just above the left ear. Griffin was carried unconscious from the field and hospitalized with a severe concussion.

Indians 8, Twins 3

Charlie Spikes stroked a two-run single to extend his hitting streak to 19 games as Cleveland won its fifth straight. Fritz Peterson and Fred Beene, both acquired from the Yankees last week, combined on an eight-hitter. Bobby Darwin homered twice for Minnesota.

Rangers 12, Brewers 10

Jeff Burroughs, Jim Spencer and Cesar Tovar hit home runs for Texas. Burroughs and Spencer hit theirs consecutively in the eighth inning to put the Rangers ahead for good. Johnny Briggs drove in three runs for Milwaukee.

Yankees 4, Athletics 3

Back-to-back home runs by Roy White and Chris Chambliss in the eighth inning gave New York the win. Mel Stottlemyre picked up his fifth victory against one loss. Vida Blue dropped to 0-3 for Oakland.

White Sox 2, Orioles 1

Ron Santo's first American League homer, a two-run shot, accounted for Chicago's victory. Stan Bahnsen tossed a seven-hitter for the White Sox, besting Jim Palmer. Bobby Grich singled home the lone Baltimore run.

Tuesday's National League results: Houston 4, Chicago 2; St. Louis 7, Atlanta 2; San Diego 2, Montreal 1; New York 8, Los Angeles 7; Philadelphia 6, San Francisco 5; and the Cincinnati-Pittsburgh game was rained out.

Fuel rationing bill kept quiet

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $13.7-million appropriation to pay for the printings and storage of gasoline ration coupons is slipping through Congress virtually unnoticed, Rep. Harold V. Froehlich, R-Wis., said Monday.

He speculated that the issue is being kept quiet by members who are embarrassed they were so eager last December and January to impose gasoline rationing.

The money was contained in an $8-billion supplemental appropriation bill passed April 10 by the House. Last week money for the coupons also was approved by the Senate appropriations subcommittee on the interior.

The FEO printed 4.8 billion ration coupons starting last January which have never been used.

Fine speaks on voter registration

Dwight L. Fine of Jefferson City, Democratic candidate for state auditor, was guest speaker at Tuesday night's Kiwanis Club meeting at Ramada Inn and spoke on voter registration and campaign funds.

Fine said more people should register to vote and become involved. No one should complain about government if he does not vote, he added. In 1972, only 55 per cent of the people voted in the state and in the last election, only 20 to 30 per cent voted.

Evil can also be seen in the big money spent in politics, he said. More people should finance a campaign instead of a few large contributors. A candidate can spend more than a million dollars to be elected governor which is too much, he stated.

Politicians could also shorten the campaign season and make air time available on radio and television, Fine stated.

He concluded by saying that Americans should demonstrate that they care about this country by doing something to restore confidence in government and politics.

Fine was introduced by Lee Shell.

Don Pratt, president, appointed a nominating committee for new officers and a special committee to nominate the outstanding man of the year.

Fred French, scout executive, was a guest of the club.

The next Kiwanis Club meeting will be held Tuesday, with members gathering at Ramada Inn at 5:45 p.m. to go to Portageville for dinner. There also will be a roundtable meeting at Ramada Inn for those who cannot go to Portageville.

The Protestant cathedral at Ulm, Germany, is reputed to have the tallest cathedral spire in the world, with a height of 528 feet, The World Almanac notes. The Gothic cathedral's construction was begun in 1377 but wasn't completed until 1890.

Bond says 1974 session not a successful one

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Legislature had been adjourned only briefly when House Speaker Richard Rabbitt called a news conference to praised the Democratic leadership for "a very successful session." Minutes later Gov. Christopher S. Bond held his own news conference and disagreed.

"Over-all," Bond said, "the legislative session was not a successful one."

Bond criticized legislative action in the Senate Tuesday where an amendment he described as "crippling" was added to a maternal health care bill he has pushed vigorously.

The amendment, attached by Sen. Emory Melton, R-Cassville, provides for legislative review of rules and regulations of the state Department of Health in administering the maternal health care and hospital aid provisions of the bill.

Bond would not commit himself to a veto of the measure, but said the rules review provision was "totally unwarranted and unsound."

Bond said a substitute bill on campaign reform introduced Saturday by Senate President Pro Tem William J. Cason, D-Clinton, "probably had as much to do with its defeat as anything else."

He described campaign finance reform as probably the major issue in the just - ended session of the legislature and said it was "unfortunate" the legislature failed to pass such legislation.

Bond described as "false economy" the legislature's cut of $30,000 from the budget of the Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council.

He said the cut would cost Missouri about $13 million in federal funds.

Bond said his effort to remove Department of Revenue fee offices from the patronage system "was blocked by the Democratic leadership in the Senate."

The Governor also criticized the legislature for appropriation cuts to the Department of Corrections and for not approving an Ethics Commission to oversee actions of government officials in an attempt to prevent conflicts of interest.

Bond agreed with some members of the House who said Senate language in a bill to repeal the personal property tax on household goods which would require state reimbursement of lost funds to local governments was probably invalid.

He said it was his feeling the legislature could not bind future legislatures to reimburse the funds and that he would seek legal advice from Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth before making a final decision.

He went on to add however, that "the state cannot, the state will not" reimburse local units of government for lost revenue.

Rabbitt said the loss of a campaign reform bill was the fault of the Senate, some representatives and too little time. "Many senators still don't want a bill," Rabbitt declared.

Rabbitt charged the upper chamber "held up most important bills until the last minute."

He said he doubted there was any chance for a special session on the reform issue or any other matter.

Rabbitt said the atmosphere in the House chamber in the final minutes of the session was caused by opponents of campaign spending laws and should be put in the context of an otherwise studious and productive four month session.

Highlights of the regular session, Rabbitt said, included a "complete open committee meeting" policy that restored the voters confidence in the political process. House committees, he added, are now more reflective of party proportion than ever before.

Majority Leader Kenneth Rothman, D-Clayton, said the session proved "the legislature can develop its own programs and be a co-equal branch of government."

Leaders agreed an alternative to the last minute rush of lawmaking must be found.

Campaign reform dies amid mass bedlam

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Amid cursing, yelling and general bedlam the promise of campaign reform in Missouri for the 1974 election died Tuesday night as the legislative session reached a raucous conclusion.

With House members pacing up and down aisles of the chamber, tossing paper in the air and screaming for recognition, Speaker Richard Rabbitt called for a vote on a conference committee report on campaign finance reform approved moments earlier.

The conference committee report had seemingly broken a deadlock between the House and Senate over the status of the Secretary of State on the controling Elections Commission after the stalemate extended into the last hour of the session.

Senate President Pro Tem William J. Cason had been adamant in his insistence that the Secretary of State be the voting chairman of the Elections Commission established to enforce provisions of the bill.

The House had insisted on no involvement for the secretary of state but agreed to a compromise proposal under which the secretary of state would be the non-voting chairman of the commission.

Later, the House agreed to a secord compromise, which provided that the Secretary of State would be the non-voting chairman except in cases of ties when he could vote. The House took up the bill with an impatient Majority Leader Kenneth Rothman being questioned by Rep. Earl Schlef, D-Dellwood, about removal of a provision to prohibit contributions by businesses and labor unions.

Rothman, who had led the House conferees, was attempting to gain passage so the Senate could act on the measure in the closing moments of the session.

The strategy almost succeeded as Rabbitt called for a vote on the measure without letting a number of representatives seeking recognition speak. Then, House decorum collapsed.

Papers flew in the air, Representatives charged to the front of the chamber and curses pierced the normally solemn atmosphere of the House.

Dead bills listed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Legislation that failed made as much news in the 1974 Missouri legislative session that ended Tuesday night as did bills that passed.

Among the bills that failed to make it:

Establishment of no-fault auto insurance; reinstatement of the death penalty; reforming the state's campaign finance laws; ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution; revision of the state criminal code; reforming the state's judicial system; compensation for victims of serious crimes; set up mandatory police training and give state aid for police training; establish minimum jail standards; collective bargaining for public employes.

Set a $2 minimum wage in the state; full state funding to Missouri Western and Missouri Southern Colleges; strengthen the drunk driving law; increase the state usury limit from 8 to 10 per cent; revamp the distribution formula for state aid to schools; allowing private school pupils to ride public buses; establishing a state ombudsman office for hearing citizens' complaints; revise the Open Meetings law to say that public bodies can't make rules to close records unless approved by the legislature and to allow police to have access to the records; raise interest rates on delinquent taxes; repeal of the ban on Sunday sales of most commodities except food and drugs.

Also, control the growth of corporate farms; preserve the secrecy of the ballot when voting machines are used; lowering the two-thirds majority vote on bond issues approvals; allow school districts to raise tax levies above $3.75 per $100 of assessed valuation by a majority vote rather than two thirds, and require criminal trials to start within 120 days from arrest for persons in jail.

DEDICATE NEW RECORDS CENTER

(Jefferson City) — Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick accepts the keys to Missouri's new State Records Center from Governor Christopher S. Bond. The two state officials participated in ceremonies dedicating the new rental quarters which will provide low cost, bulk storage for up to 282 million semi-active state records.

"This new building will allow us to expand our services and provide even greater savings of taxpayers' dollars," Kirkpatrick said. "It more than doubles our storage capacity, guarantees better fire protection, increases space for our microfilm operation and provides better protection for the historic records of the state Archives. I hope, however, the time is not too far away when we can have a state owned Records Center- State Library. With what we're paying in rent, such a building would pay for itself within a few years."

Kirkpatrick established the state records program in his office in 1965. In the nine years, more than $3¼ million has been saved by assisting state agencies to get rid of some 190 million obsolete records, provide record center storage in the old records center for 126 million records, and make available to state agencies a centralized microfilm service.

The General Assembly in 1973 approved expansion of the program under Kirkpatrick's direction to counties, cities and other local government units.

ARTFUL COTTON—The natural look of handwoven cotton provides the perfect fabric for showing off the distinctive craft of San Blas appliques. Each of the cutaway appliques circling the full skirt worn by Maid of Cotton Kathy Raskin is in a different design and a multitude of colors. Completing the outfit is a square-necked blouse with short flared sleeves trimmed in black. By El Buzon of Texas.

COOKING-UP

Readers,

This week's column includes a few recipes I have picked up from friends, who rate them among their favorites, and have become mine, too.

Judy Stricklin

OVEN STEAK

2 to 3 lb. steak
1 pt. tomato juice
1 medium size onion, chopped
1 cup evaporated milk
salt, pepper and garlic salt to taste
1 cup diced cheese

Cut steak into serving pieces and brown in hot fat.

Remove from fat, drain, and place in baking dish.

Combine other ingredients and pour over steak. Arrange 1 cup diced cheese on top.

Bake at 325 degrees for two or three hours, until tender.

APPLE CHEESE WALNUT BREAD

½ cup margarine
3/4 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 3/4 cup flour
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. ginger
1 cup grated apples
1 cup grated cheese
1 cup walnuts, broken

Cream margarine and blend in sugar and eggs. Set aside.

Mix flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and ginger and then add to margarine mixture.

Add apples, cheese and walnuts a little at a time until well mixed.

TRIPLE FUDGE CAKE

1 pkg. chocolate pudding and pie filling
1 pkg. devil's food cake mix
½ cup chocolate chip pieces
½ cup nuts, chopped

Follow directions on pudding box and make pudding. Cool partially.

Add box of dry cake mix to pudding. Pour in greased cake pan and sprinkle top with chocolate pieces and nuts.

Bake in 350 degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes.

HAMBURGER PIE

1 medium onion, chopped
1 lb. ground beef
1 No. 2 can green beans
10½ oz. can tomato soup
5 medium potatoes, cooked
½ cup warm milk
1 beaten egg

Cook onion and hamburger together; salt and pepper to taste. Add drained beans and soup.

Mash potatoes, add milk, egg, more salt and pepper and then spoon in mounds over meat.

Bake in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes.

ITALIAN SALAMI SALAD

1 small head lettuce
½ lb. salami, cut into cubes
2 medium tomatoes or 10 cherry tomatoes
2 cucumbers, sliced
Dressing

Wash and tear lettuce. Put in big tossing bowl and add salami, tomato and cucumber.

Toss with dressing of your choice until greens glisten.

WALDORF SALAD

1 cup diced celery
1 cup grapes, halved
1 cup chopped pecans or walnuts
½ cup raisins

FRANK AND CHEESE DOGS

¼ cup softened margarine
¼ cup plus 2 tbsp. prepared yellow mustard
¼ cup shredded cheese
1 loaf Italian bread
2 tbsp. ketchup
1 pound weiners or frankfurters

Mix margarine, ¼ cup mustard and cheese.

Split bread and spread with cheese mixture. Wrap in foil.

Combine ketchup

Combine ketchup and leftover mustard and set aside.

Heat bread in oven for 10 to 15 minutes, while broiling or boiling weiners. If broiled, add ketchup mixture periodically, coating each. If boiled, cook, then roll in mixture.

Place weiners crosswise on bread and cut sandwiches off according to appetites.

Beef steak is way to any man's heart

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Steak has long stood for the good life in America, and now it is regarded as a sign of affluence. But, costly as it is, most of us feel the need for a broiled slab of beef once in a while.

Everyone has his own ideas about how steak should be cooked. Time was when most diners preferred it well done, or at least medium. But today they usually ask for medium rare and some relish it half raw.

Most steak buffs have their favorite cut, and this brings up something I haven't been able to figure out: the names they give steaks. I'm told that Britons had never heard of London broil until some Yank informed them what it was. And, although I was born and raised in Manhattan, I had never seen a New York steak on a menu until I visited Maryland.

As most of us know, beef is graded by government inspectors for the protection of the consumer. It ranges from prime, the most expensive, to choice, which is generally considered the best for daily household fare, and on down the ladder to grades which are tough but still edible. Actually, the bottom levels are not recommended unless you blanket them with tenderizer and have a good set of teeth.

Most butchers will tell you just what grade of meat you are buying, but there are exceptions. Unless you know the man behind the meat counter, it is best to get a briefing on the signs of quality. Tender beef is heavily marbled with white streaks of fat. And the color of the best beef, experts say, is bright crimson.

Many people think of steak as a cut of beef seared on both sides in the broiler, then served with mushrooms or onions and French fries. But there are other ways. Steak cooked in beer is delicious, and a cut of round simmered in wine can be a masterpiece. In fact, this method can make a tough piece of meat fork-tender.

STEAK IN WINE SAUCE

3 pounds round steak 1½ inches thick
2 tablespoons butter
3 medium onions chopped
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
Dash of worcestershire
1 cup sliced mushrooms
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup red wine
1 to 2 tablespoons flour

Brown steak on both sides in butter. Add onions, mustard, salt, worcestershire, mushrooms, wine and ½ cup water. Cover tightly and simmer 2 hours. Add mixture of 1 part wine and 2 parts water if needed. Add flour to pan juices and simmer 3 minutes. Add still more liquid if needed. Good with chilled ale. Serves 6.

Bread has bananas and peanut butter

Nutritious loaf

Bananas and peanut butter go into this tender and delicate bread.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Although we've baked dozens of loaves of banana quick bread in our test kitchen, we never thought of adding peanut butter to the batter until a friend who lives in the Canal Zone and a reader from Jackson, Miss., sent us their recipes for such a bread. Then we came upon the combination in "Cook-in — A Beginner's Guide to the Fun of Cooking" by Kathleen Dunning Fisher (David White). On testing all three recipes our tasters agreed that Kathleen's was by far the best because it made to butter-sugar mixture and blend. With a fork, finely mash enough banana to make 1 cup; add peanut butter and blend. Into butter-sugar-egg mixture stir the flour mixture, in about 4 additions, alternately with banana mixture until just smooth each time. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 50 to 70 minutes. Let stand on a wire rack for 10 minutes; loosen edges and turn out on rack; turn right side up. Cool completely. Bread slices well fresh from the oven or cold.

the tenderest and most delicate loaf. Here is our adaptation of her nutritious bread.

BANANA BREAD

2 cups unsifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
2 large eggs
2 to 3 ripe bananas
½ cup crunchy peanut butter

Grease a 9 by 5 by 3 inch loaf pan. Thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Cream butter and sugar. Beat eggs until thickened and lemon color; add

Cheese bread is made into miniature loaves

Tiny cheese loaves

Miniature cheese loaves are fun to serve and give as gifts.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I love the recipe for the large loaf of cheese bread in your cookbook. Now I would like to use that recipe for making miniature loaves to serve to guests and to give as gifts. But I don't know how many small pans and the temperature and time to use in baking these. — BREAD BUFF.

DEAR BREAD BUFF: What a fine idea! I'm delighted to give you the details for making the miniature loaves. In this case I found it practical to double the original recipe and I used another method of mixing. The cheese bread recipe in my cookbook has been very popular — perhaps because it uses less sugar and more cheese than the usual formula. I hope these miniature loaves will be just as well received. — C. B.

MINIATURE CHEESE LOAVES

3¾ to 4¼ cups unsifted flour
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 packages active dry yeast
1 cup milk
½ cup water
2 cups grated (medium fine) sharp cheddar cheese, slightly packed (½ pound)

In large bowl of electric mixer thoroughly stir together 1½ cups of the flour, the sugar, salt and undissolved yeast.

In a small saucepan over low heat, heat the milk and water until very warm — 120 to 130 degrees. Gradually stir into flour mixture; beat at medium speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl several times. Add cheese and ¼ cup flour; beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl several times. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough. Turn out onto a lightly floured surface; knead until smooth and elastic — 8 to 10 minutes. Place in clean, dry, greased mixer bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm (about 80 degrees) draftfree place until doubled — about 1½ hours.

Punch down dough. Divide into 8 equal portions and shape into 8 loaves for 4½ by 2½ by 1½ inch pans or divide dough into 4 equal portions and shape into 4 loaves for 6 by 3 by 2½ inch pans. Place in greased pans. Cover; let rise as previously until doubled — about 1 hour and 20 minutes.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven 20 minutes for 4½-inch loaves and 25 minutes for 6-inch loaves; place a sheet of foil over loaves during last 5 minutes to avoid excessive browning. Remove from pans to wire racks and cool. If bottoms and sides of loaves are a pale color when you remove them from pans, return loaves (minus pans) to a low rack of oven and continue baking at 375 degrees until sides take on more color — about 5 minutes; bottoms of loaves will show oven-rack marks but that doesn't matter. Cheese loaves may be stored at room temperature for a day or two, but if they are to be kept longer they should be refrigerated; in either case reheat them before serving.

For Sunday brunch fill toast cups with scrambled eggs. To make the cups, remove the crusts from thin slices of soft bread and then spread the slices with soft butter.

Coffee Corner by Cherie

A friend brought this little article to me recently, and it hits the spot so beautifully I'm going to reprint it so you too may enjoy her feelings on little boys.

YOU'LL KNOW.
IT'S A BOY IF ...
by Ruth Stoffel

... the only thing he'll put away is a big meal.

... he thinks of a bath as mission intolerable.

... he'll cut off his jeans but not his hair.

... your scolding leaves him emotionally undisturbed.

... he believes it's an ill wind that blows a musical instrument.

... he scores nine out of ten baskets, and the tenth is always your wastebasket.

... his T-shirt is on backwards and inside-out.

... he changes your kitchen from early American to late-snack.

... he's peppier when he's sick than you are when you're well.

... he'll go to the moon but not to a birthday party.

... he knows how a space ship works but not a pants hanger.

... he thinks square meals are really square.

... he changes your contemporary furniture to just temporary.

... he makes you feel as old as he thinks you are.

he isn't worth 2 cents — but a million dollars wouldn't even make a down payment!

Recipes sometimes call for "greasing and flouring" a pan. To do this, use a piece of paper toweling and rub solid white shortening over the entire inside surface of the pan; then sprinkle the greased surface with flour, shaking the pan back and forth to coat evenly. Finally, invert the pan and gently knock the bottom to remove excess flour.

Session ends without campaign bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Shouting and paper throwing erupted in the Missouri Legislature near the midnight adjournment of the 1974 regular session Tuesday night as an attempt to ram through campaign reform legislation was successful in the House but failed in the Senate.

The campaign reform bill cleared the House about 10 minutes before midnight following nearly five hours of conference committee work to negotiate differences between the House and Senate versions.

House Speaker Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St. Louis, ignored Representatives seeking recognition and called for a vote on the conference report. Several representatives began yelling at Rabbitt and tossing paper in the air and pacing up and down the aisle. The vote carried.

Meanwhile, in the Senate, a typing error held up distribution of copies of the conference committee report and Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, explained the bill in the last five minutes before the mandatory midnight adjournment.

Al Booker, a Senate employe, started to unplug the electric clock to delay the automatic adjournment as a senator sought to question Cason about the conference bill.

Several senators saw Booker and shouted at him not to touch the clock. He stopped the clock as nearly all the senators rose, shouting, with Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps pounding his gavel.

The shouting continued for a couple of minutes and then it was 12:05 a.m. Sen. Lawrence Lee, D-St. Louis, the majority leader, called for an immediate vote at 12:03 a.m. He was shouted down.

Finally Lee moved for adjournment and it was over with no campaign bill.

Several significant bills, however, gained approval from both houses in the waning hours of the four-month regular session and were sent to the Governor's desk, including revision of the state's Workmen's Compensation Law, abortion regulation and Gov. Christopher S. Bond's favored prenatal care bill, tacked on to a compromise hospital aid plan.

Killed or left unattended at the close were the reinstatement of the mandatory death penalty for certain crimes, elimination of the waiting week for collection of unemployment compensation, curbing of corporate farms and revision of the school aid distribution formula to give more school districts more money.

As the state's nearly 200 legislators left the capitol for the first extended period since a special legislative session began Dec. 3, these legislative gains were noted.

—Expansion of the coverage under Workmen's Compensation with increased beneits. The bill increases maximum weekly benefits from $70 to $95 for permanent total disability, $65 to $75 for permanent partial disability and $10 to $21 in rehabilitation payments.

It requires participation in the compensation plan by all employers of more than five persons excluding farm and domestic labor employers with yearly payrolls or less than $2,500.

—The abortion bill, criticized in the Senate as being unconstitutional would forbid abortions after the first three months of pregnancy unless the woman had been raped or if it was necessary to save her life.

The measure would allow abortions within the first three months of pregnancy for any reason, but they would have to be performed by a doctor in a hospital. Consent of the father would also be required except in cases of rape or if the abortion is necessary to save a life.

Abortions by the saline injection method are prohibited by the bill after the first three months of pregnancy.

—A combined mental retardation prevention and hospital aid bill that survived a stormy legislative session was also approved by both houses and sent to the Governor. The measure combined two bills, one favored by Bond and one he opposes.

The combine took place on the House floor as a Democratic attempt to force Bond to sign the measure in order to get the mental retardation provisions.

The hospital aid portion of the measure would give hospitals that show a deficit in operating costs 10 per cent of the deficit.

Bond vetoed a similar hospital aid package last year, but the chances for it's approval by the Governor may be better now because he wants the treatment and detection program for mental retardation.

The mental retardation detection and treatment program is designed to treat and identify mothers considered likely to bear mentally retarded children. Preference for state aid would be given to hospitals which participate in the mental retardation program.

—A bill making sales, use and income tax evasion or failure to file returns a felony gained Senate approval and

4 file for 10th district position

Opponents for Burlison's position are Arthur T. Stephenson, a Caruthersville Democrat, and Virginia E. Hendricks of Dexter and Truman Farrow of Jackson, Republicans. Burlison is a Democrat.

A flurry of candidates for congressional races hit the Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick's office to file just prior to Tuesday's 5 o'clock deadline. The number of candidates for Missouri's 10 seats in the U. S. House of Representatives on the August primary ballot now stands at 42.

All 10 of the state's incumbent representatives filed for re- election and all seats will be contested in November.

Associated Gas requests rate increase

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark. — The Associated Natural Gas Co., a subsidiary of Arkansas - Missouri Power Co., Tuesday filed an application with the Missouri Public Service Commission in Jefferson City asking for a natural gas rate increase. It was further requested that the new rates go into effect June 1, according to the company's president, Frank G. Smith Jr.

Except for purchased gas adjustments, it is the first time in 20 years that the company has petitioned the state regulatory agency for a rate increase, he said.

The proposed rate increase, affecting all of the Associated Natural Gas Co. accounts, would amount to a total of $1,303,178. Smith cited escalating operating costs and inflation as the principal reasons Associated is seeking new rates.

He said the vast majority of stock - in -trade items used by the business has rapidly increased in cost, citing as an example steel pipe that cost $80.66 per hundred feet last year which now costs $92.76, an increase in less than one year of 15 per cent.

Increases in cost of equipment for maintenance and operation, wages and money costs were also cited. Just a year ago, he said the firm was paying six per cent interest on money borrowed and is now paying 10 per cent.

"Although we are under orders of the Securities and Exchange Commission to dispose of our natural gas properties, an increase in natural gas rates is necessary," Smith stated. "The company's natural gas

Cline is opposed for representative

JEFFERSON CITY — State Rep. C. F. Cline of Sikeston will be opposed in his bid re-election to the 159th District seat by David Lee Page of Sikeston. By the filing deadline at 5 p.m. Tuesday, races had developed in three other districts containing parts of Scott, Stoddard, Mississippi and New Madrid counties.

No Republicans filed for representative in the 159th District.

In the 157th District, incumbent J. T. Jerry Howard of Dexter will be opposed for the Democratic nomination by Eugene Payne of Advance.

Seeking the position on the Republican ticket is Verlan Beacham of Bernie.

Incumbent Rep. Fred E. "Gene" Copeland of New Madrid was the only Democrat to file in the 161st District. He will be opposed in November by Francis Hulshof, a Portageville Republican.

Rep. Fred DeField of Charleston is unopposed in the 160th District, and Vic Downing of Bragg City, the incumbent in the 162nd district, is also unopposed.

The State Senate terms of Nelson B. Tinnin of Hornersville and Albert Spradling of Cape Girardeau do not expire this year.

The primary election will be held Aug. 6.

Sikeston sailor saves man's life

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Navy says a young sailor from Sikeston, Mo., has been honored for grabbing a wouldbe suicide victim by the scruff of the neck and holding him for a state patrolman.

A man was climbing the railing of the San Diego - Coronado Bay Ridge when Yeoman 2.C. Don Jones, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Jones of 403 Prosperity, Sikeston, stopped his car and tried to talk him out of jumping a Navy spokesman said.

The two men struggled for several minutes before a California highway patrolman arrived. The unidentified man was finally strapped down and taken to a hospital for psychiatric care.

According to Jones' mother, he had been following a slowing car on the bridge and got out to offer assistance when the car stopped. When the driver headed toward the bridge rail, Jones realized that a suicide attempt was taking place and tried to halt the man.

A scuffle that turned into a boxing match began and Jones' wife Brenda had to lend a hand when the man began to drag Jones toward the rail.

Mrs. Jones, the former Brenda Graham of East Prairie, was kicked and knocked down in the struggle.

The incident took place Jan. 28. Jones, who was awarded the Navy Medal for his act, has since reenlisted for six more years.

Council approves $1.2 million budget

The City Council Tuesday approved a budget of $1,279,810 for the 1974 fiscal year, which begins today.

The budget includes a pay raise for all city employes, funding for a department of economic development, funds for proposed street and storm sewer improvements and a new northside fire station.

The budger is about $4,000 lower than the 1973 budget of $1,283,575.

Budget allocations are $153,690 for the general government fund, which includes $505 for the City Council, $38,640 for the city manager's office, $45,375 for the city clerk's office, $10,350 for the city attorney, $7,390 for municipal court, $4,590 for elections, $6,050 for public buildings and $40,890 for the new office of economic developments.

The budget allocates $440,180 for public safety, including $308,985 for the police department, $104,630 for the fire department, $4,500 for civil defense, $14,694 for regulatory inspection and $7,370 for animal protection.

For roadways and sanitation, the city budgeted $280,895, including $20,375 for engineering and $260,520 for streets.

Included in the city's street plans for the coming year are the widening of East Kathleen Avenue from South Kingshighway to South New Madrid St., widening Cresap Place, widening Garwood Street from Edwards Street to the east end and extending North West Street to Salcedo Road, Wakefield Street from the Frisco railroad crossing to North West Street and William Street from Malcolm to Cole's Subdivision.

Renovation of the existing storm sewer system is also planned.

Recreation will receive $170,370 in the budget, including $125,370 for parks, $75,000 of which goes to the construction of the new recreational complex. Also included in the recreation budget is $45,000 for the library board.

The airport will receive $46,600.

Miscellaneous expenditures, including debt retirement and land purchases, are budgeted for $150,200, and contingency funds are budgeted for $37,878.

Pay increases will total a 10 per cent hike for administrative personnel and a blanket $960 annual increase for police, fire and street personnel.

The $180,000 in federal revenue sharing funds the city will receive this year are distributed throughout the budget.

The council passed a resolution fixing the city property tax rate for 1974 at $1.50 per $100 assessed valuation, the same as last year. Of the $1.50, 91 cents will go into the general revenue fund, 20 cents to help pay off the 1965 water and sewer bond, 19 cents to the library fund and 20 cents to the park fund.

Bill Whitlock, acting city manager, said the park board will need about double the revenue next year because of expenses added by the new 140- acre recreation complex. He said the council will have to find some way to come up with the added revenue.

Whitlock said the city can raise its general revenue tax rate by nine cents without a public vote. Such a move would add an additional $23,000 to city income.

The council authorized City Court Judge James Sickal to designate police officers to swear out complaints. The city has gone to a sworn complaint system when police make arrests. Under the law only the judge is allowed to sign a complaint.

Police Chief Leon Culp told the council the judge would designate nine men on the force to swear out the complaints.

Under the old system, one party would often sign a complaint and then later refuse to prosecute. This happened quite often in family disputes, City Attorney Manuel Drumm told the council.

Hopefully, under the new system, where the person has to make a sworn statement, they will think about whether or not they want to prosecute before signing a complaint, Drumm said.

The council approved a bid for a new street sweeper. The city had asked three companies to submit bids, but only Key Equipment and Supply Co. of Maryland Heights did.

The Key Equipment bid was $12,770, plus the city's current sweeper, a 1971 model. The council voted to add glass doors for an additional $360. The doors will enable the driver to see a larger area while the sweeper is in operation.

The council voted to approve transfer of ownership of a thin strip of land along the south side of West North Street, west of Alabama Street, from the city to Sikeston Recovery Inc. Sikeston Recovery will sell the land to property owners to allow them to increase the size of their lots.

The Rev. Paul Walker, pastor of First Christian Church, reported on his study of what other cities are doing in the way of establishing human resource committees.

He suggested the first step toward such a committee in Sikeston should be the establishment of a directory of social services to which people in need could refer.

Races develop in Bootheel as filing closes

Primary election activity appears to be more lively in New Madrid County than in Scott, Stoddard and Mississippi counties as the filing deadline for the Aug. 6 primary election arrived at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

This is the first time in several years that there has been as much competition among Democratic candidates in New Madrid County, and for the first time since the 1970 national census revealed that the county population is less than 30,000, the county probate judge will also serve as magistrate judge. Probate Judge John R. Bailey of Portageville is unopposed for the combined office.

Competition among the Democratic candidates involves those seeking nominations for the offices of county collector of revenue, county treasurer and recorder of deeds, according to County Clerk Jesse H. Wilkins, who said four candidates are running for both the collector and treasurer offices, and three are seeking the recorder's post.

Wilkins said there no Republican candidates filed for any county office.

In the race for the collector's post, being vacated by William H. Dean are W. A. Scobey, W. R. Phillips Jr. and Robert A. Riley of New Madrid and Van Whittle of Canalou.

Competing for the county treasurer position, being relinquished by W. R. Phillips Jr., are H. H. "Bud" Townsend Jr. and Price P. Thompson of New Madrid, Shirley LaPlant of New Madrid Route One and O. D. Henning of Morehouse.

Recorder of Deeds Linus E. Young of Portageville is opposed for re-election by Donald R. Schaffer of Lilbourn and Robert B. Hedgepeth of New Madrid.

Jimmy W. Farrenburg of New Madrid Route One is unopposed for county clerk to succeed Wilkins, who is retiring.

Other candidates unopposed for re-election are Hal F. Hunter Jr. of New Madrid, prosecuting attorney; Van H. Sharp Jr. of New Madrid, circuit clerk; Raymond Ashley of Catron, presiding judge of the County Court; John H. Calvin of Sikeston Route Three, associate judge of the County Court first district; and John H. Workman Jr. of Portageville, associate judge of the County Court second district.

Unopposed Democratic committeemen and committeewomen candidates in each of the 11 townships:

Anderson: Jerry Bell and Vitice Pierce of Gideon.

Big Prairie: Jim Huls and Dorothy Fern Roberts of Matthews.

Hough: Elwood Pickett and Marsha Pickett of Matthews Route One.

LaFont: Charles Pikey Jr. of Conran and Hazel Pardon of Portageville Route One.

New Madrid: Louis Martin of Kewanee and Virginia R. Recker of New Madrid.

Portage: R. L. Saalwaechter and Doris W. Warren of Portageville.

St. John: J. W. Stowe and Virgie Lawfield of East Prairie Star Route.

Unopposed Republican committeeman candidates are: Erwin Lloyd of Lilbourn in Lewis Township; Charles L. Spitler of New Madrid in New Madrid Township; and Don Rone of Portageville in Portage Township.

Several races have developed for Scott County offices in the Aug. 6 Democratic primary election.

Filing closed Tuesday with two or more candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for presiding judge and first and second district associate judge positions on the County treasurer.

Three Democratic township committeeman positions also have more than one candidate.

No Republicans filed for county offices other than township committee positions.

For presiding judge, a race has developed between Louie Hirschowitz of Oran, presently serving as second district associate judge, and Bill Lewis of Sikeston a former associate judge of the first district.

Eldon Ziegenhorn of Sikeston, the incumbent first district judge, is being challenged by Arthur Bruce of Sikeston.

Les Lankford of Chaffee, the current presiding judge, is relinquishing that post to run for the second district associate judge position. He is opposed by Melvin Glueck of Illmo and Donald E. Vance of Chaffee.

Incumbent County Clerk Bob Kielhofner of Chaffee is being challenged by Phil Waldman of Sikeston.

PUBLIC CAMPAIGN FINANCING

The Senate has passed a revolutionary scheme to finance all federal election campaigns out of the U. S. treasury. The measure, however, is now being considered in the House of Representatives where, we hope, cooler heads will prevail and will kill it.

We sympathize with the aims of the public financing idea and are painfully aware of the well-publicized and disgraceful abuses it is designed to check. At the same time, however, we believe it would simply substitute one set of problems for another set.

Former U. S. Senator John J. Williams (R-Del.), who for years was regarded as the "conscience of the Senate," summarizes major objections to the proposal in the March issue of the Reader's Digest.

"For one thing, federal financing would make political parties unresponsive to the people," writes Williams. "Guaranteed millions of dollars from the public treasury, a party could pursue extremist or outworn aims year after year simply because it would not have to go to the people for financial support. In areas that are predominantly Democratic or Republican, candidates of the less- favored party would receive tax funds vastly disproportionate to their popular support."

We find Sen. William's views persuasive. Rather than institute a sweeping campaign financing change in a moment of emotional reaction, we would prefer to see the present private system of contributions toughtened and altered where necessary. If campaign funding laws that are already on the books were enforced, there would be little need for substantial change.

A FAMILY ROOM OUTDOORS

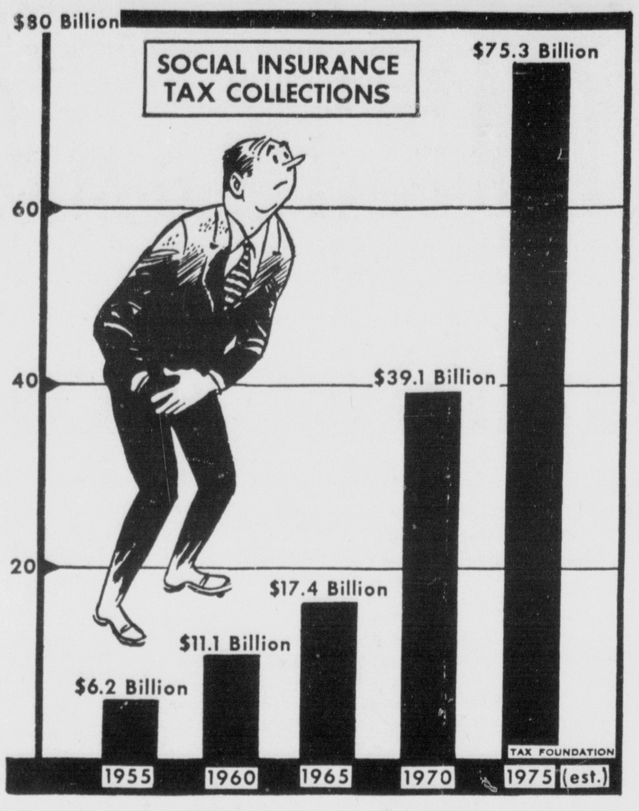
Looking ahead to a summer we all will be traveling less and staying at home more, the people of the American Association of Nurserymen suggest this may be a good time to consider designing a family room outdoors. What they are talking about is something more than the traditional patio (although it may be an extension of that concept) because it should be planned to accommodate much more family activity.

"Consider all the different things you do in the indoor family room," the nursery people say, "and decide how they can be moved to an outdoor room. It's a place for relaxation, of course, with comfortable furnishings. It may be where television viewing takes place. It is the game room. And, on entertainment occasions, it is the party place." All of these functions, the nursery spokesmen point out, are easily and attractively moved outdoors with just a small amount of planning.

An important element, according to the nursery authorities, is the installation of some sort of "walls" or "partitions" to define the space of the outdoor family room. This, of course, is probably a hedge that keeps out unwelcome noise, provides privacy, freshens and cools the air with its own natural air conditioning. If you have space enough, a shade tree or a flowering tree here and there will be a smart addition. This may be a place, too, to put in some of your favorite flowers and plants, much in the same way you add pictures and brick-a-brac to decorate an indoor family room.

Have you been wanting to make a rock garden? Surely there will be a corner of the outdoor room where this could be appropriate. If you add a bird bath and bird feeder you will probably welcome some new wildlife guests. Be sure to include games in the arrangement — perhaps a badminton net just outside the room, maybe croquet, and, inside the outdoor family room a weather- resistant chess and checkerboard, space for a bridge table if that's your game, a dart board, whatever family fun you like.

Planning and preparing this kind of outdoor extension to the home is an enjoyable activity for most families, the nursery people find, and it is richly rewarding because the results become visible from the outset. Any reputable nursery garden center or landscape firm can provide all the advice, materials and assistance you may require.



Tax payments to finance rising costs of Federal social insurance programs—old age, survivors, disability, and hospital benefits—are expected to reach $75.3 billion in fiscal 1975, up by $7.8 billion from 1974 and 12 times their size in 1955. Since 1955 the maximum Social Security tax—employee and employer shares—has been raised 14 times, from $168 to $1,650 in 1975. Congressional increases in Social Security taxes since 1972 alone will boost tax payments by $17.1 billion, says Tax Foundation, Inc.

MAKE MINE VANILLA

The National Ice Cream Retailers Association has been meeting in Detroit in preparation for the summer season, firm in the belief that "the weak shall inherit the girth."

The big topic at such conventions is flavors. One chain already has mapped out its flavor schedule through the next six months. It begins with peach Mame (brandied peaches swirled through peace ice cream) for April; orange chocolate for May; lemon meringue pie for June; chilled strawberry sherbet and sangria ice for July; peanut butter and chocolate for August and banana nut bread for September.

The ice cream purveyors realize exotic flavors are not always successful. Some recall the fellow who destroyed himself trying to peddle spinach ice cream.

But they keep trying. One firm says it is coming out with something new for expectant mothers — dill pickle ice cream. Now there's a pregnant idea that really should be aborted.

HHH IS BACK

Hubert Humphrey's voice has been unusually still for the last few months. The man noted for his raspy, irrepressible oratory was struggling physically and spiritually with an illness that might have been cancer.

After undergoing radiation treatments for bladder tumors, the youthful exuberance that characterized his political career was beaten down by excruciating pain. "You go throw the most awful spasms that are just beyond human comprehension," he recalled.

But the pain is over. Humphrey is back at work, feeling fine. The vigor has returned to his voice. The conscientiousness and decency that have earned him respect, even among those who have not agreed with his point of view, are still much in evidence. We hope he is able to serve his country many more years.

WORKINGS OF AN IDLE MIND

I hate to admit it, but presidential critics aren't what they used to be.

Oh, politicians flatter us by calling us the scourge of the republic and saying that we're tearing down our sacred institutions but, if the truth were known, we're not a patch on our predecessors.

A friend sent me a couple of quotations from H. L. Mencken, written in the '70's to prove the point.

The first was inspired by President Harding's inaugural address. Upon hearing it, Mencken wrote:

"It reminds me of a string of wet sponges." And of the crowd who responded favorably to it, Mencke said it was the kind of crowd that Harding was used to ...

"... To wit, an audience of small town yokels, or low political serfs, or morons scarcely able to understand a word of more than two syllables, and wholly unable to pursue a logical idea for more than two centimeters ... What it wants is simply a loud burble of words, a procession of phrases that roar, a series of whoops."

Now that, certainly, is much sterner stuff than has been meted out by the most recent crops of nattering nabobs.

And then, when Harding died and Calvin Coolidge took over, Mencken called him "... simply a cheap and trashy fellow, deficient in sense and almost devoid of any notion of honor — in brief, a dreadful little cad."

And that even before he had done anything! But, Mencken knew he never would do anything. He wrote:

'The four years of Coolidge will be four years of peurile and putrid politics. The very worst elements in the Republican Party, already corrupt beyond redemption, will be in the saddle, and full of intelligent self- interest. It will be a debauch of grab.

"And it will be followed by a revolt that will make the cautious radicalism of Dr. La Follette appear almost like the gospel of Rotary. Let the friends of safety paste that in their hats. They are trying to put out a fire by squirting gasoline upon it."

Such vitriol humbles one who aspires to follow in the master's footsteps.

Not even the death of an antagonist could soften Mencken's harsh judgment. After William Jennings Bryan died, following his public humiliation at the hands of Clarence Darrow in the scopes "Monkey Trial," Mencken had this to say of him:

"This talk of sincerity, I confess fatigues me. If the fellow was sincere, then so was P. T. Barnum. The word is disgraced and degraded by such uses.

"He was, in fact, a charlatan, a montebank, a zany without sense or dignity. His career brought him into contact with the first men of his time; he preferred the company of rustic ignoramuses. It was hard to believe, watching him at Dayton, that he had traveled, that he had been received in civilized socieites, that he had been a high officer of state.

He seemed only a poor clod like those around him, deluded by a childish theology, full of an almost pathological hatred of all learning, all human dignity, all beauty, all fine and nobel things. He was a peasant come home to the barnyard.

"Imagine a gentleman, and you have imagined everything that he was not. What animated him from end to end of his grotesque career was simply ambition — the ambition of a common man to get his hand upon the collar of his superiors, or, failing that, to get his thumb into their eyes.

"He was born with a roaring voice, and it had the trick of inflaming half-wits. His whole career was devoted to raising those half-wits again t their betters, that he himslef might shine."

Let the thugs we elect to high national office scream about their critics. They can count themselves fortunate that H. L. Mencken isn't around to put his jeweler's eye to their defects.

Rumor of the week — Republicans are said to be very anxious for President Nixon to campaign for congressional candidates this fall. Democratic congressional candidates.

ENVIRONMENTAL GUERRILLA WARFARE

Pollution control measures enacted at the local level, without regard to the demands such measures will make on neighboring regions, are likely to invite retaliation. California provided an illustration of what could happen when a proposal was placed upon the California ballot calling for a five- year moratorium on the production of nuclear electric energy in the state and other stringent environmental controls. Congressman Mike McCormack of Washington State, noting the California measure, indicated that he would introduce legislation "which would prohibit the importation of electricity into any state that outlaws the production of electricity by any conventional method, including but not limited to nuclear power plants licensed by the Atomic Energy Commission." He said the California measure would mean that "... California would have to import electricity generated in other states and the other states would have to accept whatever pollution was associated with that generation."

This incident shows the lengths to which the environmental crusade can be carried. Congressman McCormack proposes that when the people of an area elect to prohibit local resource development as part of the task of meeting nationwide energy requirements, they should be enjoined from benefitting from energy produced elsewhere. Such a stricture would soon put an end to the local practice of trying to create islands of environmental purity at the expense of neighbors. On the other hand, if a region was determined to revert to "the good old days", it might become a first class tourist attraction. It would be quite an experience to visit a state like California if it should return to the candle lit cradle of early statehood - to the days of no refrigeration, no air conditioning, no electric lights, no power, darkened hospitals and the total serenity of immobilization -- if not starvation.

TO RUSSIA A TERRIBLE JUSTICE IS DUE

A scandal like Watergate could never happen in the Soviet Union — happen and be exposed to an indignant public, that is.

For one thing, it requires rival political parties. An independent judiciary and legislative branch and a long tradition of adherence to the rule of law are essential ingredients. Not least of all, it demands a free and alert press. None of these things have the Russian people ever enjoyed, either under the czars or the commissars.

The Kremlin might well wish that a "Watergate" was all that it had to contend with, however. A scandal of such monumental dimensions that the word is a pitifully inadequate label, a scandal long festering beneath the surface of Soviet life, has broken into the open with the publication in Paris of a new book by Nobel laureate Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn. It makes Watergate look like a harmless cabal among kindergartners.

The revelations and indictments contained in Solzhenitsyn's "The Gulag Archipelago, 1918-1956," go beyond those he has already written about in his other quasi-fictitious books based on his 11 years' experience as a political prisoner and exile, such as "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovitch."

In his new book, which may be his crowning life's work, Solzhenitsyn names real names of those involved, both as victims and as authorities, in the Gulag — Joseph Stalin's labor camp network.

The Kremlin faces a double dilemma: how to prevent the revelations from inevitably filtering back to the Russian public, among whom exist thousands of survivors of Stalinera terror longing for some kind of justice; and how to punish Solzhenitsyn without arousing an outcry in the outside world and causing reprecussions that could adversely affect the U. S. - Soviet detente.

It is — again to speak in wholly inadequate terms — reminiscent of the Pentagon Papers affair in this country.

While the Nixon administration had nothing to do with the initial involvement in Vietnam and the papers held little that reflected on it and much that was already on the public record, it felt it necessary to attempt to squelch their publication in the interests of "national security," and in so doing took extra- legal steps that proved much more disastrous than the publication itself.

There, of course, the comparison ends. The present Soviet leaders are the direct heirs of one of the most vicious tyranies the world has ever seen, a tyranny which fed on its own children, torture or brutal imprisonment.

Even though it may have abolished some of the worst aspects of that tyranny, for the Kremlin now to permit its victims to come forward and tell the whole story, to permit trials of the officials involved, some of whom still hold positions of authority, would be to shake the Soviet Union to its very foundations.

Doubts that some Americans may have about the fundamental justice of their system of government fade into nothingness alongside the implications for Russia in "The Gulag Archipelago."

Americans have all kinds of remedies for Watergate, including the right to throw the rascale out in the next election if not sooner.

When justice comes to Russia, it will be a terrible thing to behold. And the more it is repressed, the longer it is delayed, the more terrible it will be.

THOUGHTS PROMPTED BY KOHOUTEK

The only trouble with the "comet of the century" was that they forgot to specify which century.

The sad news for all of us who had hoped to get a look at our very first real, live, naked-eye comet is that seldom in the annals of astronomy have so many become so excited for so little reason.

At a time when Kohoutek was supposed to be at its most spectacular, even astronomers with high - powered telescopes are having trouble locating it as it begins receding into the vast outer reaches of the solar system where comets dwell. They say it began its journey 75,000 years ago. One might well ask, "Was this trip necessary?"

A book now on the newsstand proclaims on its cover that "The world's most spectacular new comet has arrived! Is it a messenger of doom from outer space or a scientific clue to the birth of our universe?"

You don't have to read the book to know that Kohoutek is both of these things. The only trouble with the messenger part is that, as noted above, the time element is a little hazy. Those members of the Children of God who carried signs in front of the United Nations announcing the end of the world coincident with Kohoutek's arrival weren't wrong, just premature.

For the cometologists, Kohoutek was indeed a notable event. It was probably the best - studied comet of all time, and certainly the first one to be directly observed and photographed in space itself, by the astronauts aboard Skylab 3.

As far as the rest of us are concerned, however, we will have to wait until 1986 for a comet worth getting up from the television set and stepping outside to see. This is when Halley's comet is due to return, and it has been a faithful crowd-pleaser since at least a couple centuries B. C. (although back then they didn't know it belonged to Mr. Halley).

But speaking of modern and ancient forms of entertainment, this business about Kohoutek reminds us how very, very distant we are psychologically from our early ancestors.

For those who have never seen a comet and probably never will, it is hard to believe tha kings once trembled when one was sighted. Those whose knowledge of the stars is limited to picking out the Big Dipper find it difficult to understand how the ancients could have people the firmament with the figures of gods and animals.

Ancient man was much closer to the sky then we, who have made it just another highway for our machines.

If the Christmas Star were to appear again, how many of us would be "abiding in the fields" and see it? Even if we saw it, how many of us would have the wisdom to follow it?

THE FOLLY OF THE EXPORT— IMPORT BANK

The Export- Import Bank (Eximbank) made direct loans of $2.4 billion in fiscal year 1973. Eximbank is operated in such a way that U. S. exporters and foreign buyers gain while the U. S. taxpayer loses.

If a U. S. exporter wants to sell abroad, he arranges an Eximbank loan to the foreign buyer. The U. S. exporter is promptly paid in dollars, and the foreign importer gets a subsidized interest rate. Eximbank charges 6 per cent interest, while the prime rate in the U. S. is at 10 or even 12 per cent interest. The interest subsidy is paid by Treasury grants to the Eximbank. In other words, it is paid by the taxpayer. If the foreign buyer defaults, the taxpayer takes the loss, not the U. S. company that made the sale.

This is bad economics. Government officials are in no position to evaluate the risks of international trade. This judgment should be made by the company that wants to make the sale. Then that company should extend credit at whatever rates of interest it believes are economically sound or insist that the foreign buyer find his own financing. Government involvement simply creates an artificial situation which encourages sales to bad credit risks.

Eximbank also engages in bad politics. One of its major loans in 1973 was to finance a Soviet truck factory. This factory is building trucks which could be used in warfare against innocent countries and even against the United States itself.

Nothing is gained by government subsidies of foreign purchases. The Export-Import Bank should be phased out. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

House Probers Rap Nixon On Misuse of Public Funds

WASHINGTON-- In a sizzling, secret report which Republicans are fighting to suppress, House investigators have charged that President Nixon has spent $17 million in public funds on his private estates.

The report lashes the responsible government agencies for their cavalier spending and calls upon them to "seek restitution" of the "unauthorized expenditures."

"(They) have abused the discretion given them," charges the report. "They have permitted public funds to be used to procure nonsecurity items. They have permitted non- government personnel to commit federal government funds. They have abandoned fiscal responsibility...."

The Secret Service is singled out for allowing President Nixon to improve his private property in the name of security. This "has tarnished the image of a once highly respected organization," declares the report.

The cost of providing protection on private presidential property has soared, states the report, "from practically nothing during the Roosevelt- Truman era to more than $17 million during the first five years of the Nixon Administration. This is more than the combined salaries of all United States Presidents."

President Nixon is lectured for "imposing burdens on the taxpayers of the nation. Maintaining private residences for use a few days each year," scolds the report, "imposes a heavy burden on the public treasury....

"Funds needed to provide presidential security should be, have been and are really available. However, every dollar that is diverted into nonsecurity expenditures under this program is a dollar that is not then available to provide needed additional security."

This is the latest word on a scandal we pried open on Oct. 3, 1972, when we reported that the taxpayers were financing improvements at President Nixon's San Clemente estate. A House subcommittee, headed by Rep. Jack Brooks, D- Tex., conducted an exhaustive investigation.

The findings were approved by the Democrats but rejected by the Republicans, who have now produced their own report. We have obtained bootleg copies of both versions. The differences are quite revealing:

-- The Republican version completely ignores the question of paying the taxpayers back for "unauthorized expenditures" on President Nixon's San Clemente and Key Biscayne property. Yet the Joint Taxation Committee, which investigated Mr. Nixon's tax returns, counted these expenditures as extra income and ruled that the President owed taxes on them.

-- The Republican draft doesn't mention the $17 million-- $9.2 million at San Clemente and $7.8 million at Key Biscayne-- that the Brooks' report claims the government spent on the two estates. The Republicans speak instead of $700,000 that the President spent on his San Clemente house and brush off the rest casually as "additional expenditures of federal money."

-- The Republican version deletes evidence that the Nixons personally ran up the government gardening bill at Key Biscayne. Referring to the Nixons as "our clients," a General Services Administration memo reports that they "had visited Key Biscayne and some changes had been made in the landscaping plan." This resulted in a $4,685.70 increase in the original bill. -- The Republican report also treats as routine the installation of an exhaust fan in the fireplace of the President's San Clemente den. Not mentioned is a memo from the secretary to President Nixon's attorney, Herb Kalmbach, reporting that the Secret Service had agreed to "pay off the installation of the fireplace fan after I informed him (the agent in charge) that it definitely was placed for security reason and how would he like it if you know who was aspixiated (sic)."

-- The GOP version doesn't make clear that the taxpayers shelled out $5,300 for the installation and purchase of 13 lanterns to light and beautify the presidential grounds. Four are still being stored in a warehouse.

-- The two versions disagree over a $1,666.90 bill which presidential crony Robert Abplanalp submitted to the GSA for repairs and painting on houses in the President's Key Biscayne compound. The Brooks report notes that "nothing in GSA's records indicates under what authority Mr. Abplanalp had acted in contracting for work for which GSA assumed responsibility." More charitably, the Republicans conclude that Abplanalp had acted in "a good faith manner."

-- At San Clemente, the government shelled out $57,582 for a wall to encircle the 26 acres of land which the President originally purchased. He later sold all but six acres to Abplanalp. Yet the Brooks report notes that "no effort was made to reimburse the federal government in any way." Defending the President, the Republican draft argues that Nixon didn't benefit from the wall.

-- Both reports agree that the President paid only $1,043 for paving at San Clemente while the taxpayers wound up with a $21,044 bill. The Brooks report cites a memo from the President's architect, Hal Lynch, suggesting the paving cost "be shared equally by the contractor, General Services and the Secret Service." The GOP document prefered to view the paving as serving "a protective purpose or incident to other protective work."

MEDIA MISFIRE: A gadfly group, which calls itself "Accuracy in Media," has been taking potshots at the press in the name of accuracy. Its own accuracy has been so slipshod, however, that few editors pay attention to it.

In a recent blast, for example, the group accused us and other newsmen of falsely reporting that Graham Martin, the U. S. ambassador to Saigon, had urged the State Department to deny "honest and detailed" answers on Indochina to Sen. Ted Kennedy, D- Mass.

Since this information came right out of Martin's confidential cable to the State Department, we were curious where in the world "Accuracy in Media" got the idea our story was false.

The attack on us, we learned, was written by a Federal Reserve employe named Reed Irvine who acts as the group's chairman. His effort was processed by the operational chief, Abraham Kalish, who admitted he didn't have a copy of Martin's cable for reference at the time he okayed Irvine's attack.

"Not even we are 100 per cent perfect," Kalish admitted.

Thieves take items valued at $4,500

RISCO — Thieves hit A & C Irrigation and Tractor Sales on Highway 62 sometime Monday night and stole items valued at $4,500. The same thieves also are believed to have been involved in the theft the same night of two power cylinders valued at $300 from the Greg Halford farm one-half mile west of the irrigation and tractor business, according to New Madrid County Deputy Sheriff Bo Wingo.

Items stolen at the A & C firm included pumps, engines, a large assortment of tools, cutting torches and tanks, 10 new truck tires and seven five-gallon cans of a farm chemical.

Wingo said a lock was broken off a north door to get into a building and then a bolt cutter was used to break a lock off a gate to enter a fenced area where several three - horsepower engines for irrigation pumps were stolen.

At the Halford farm, one of the power cylinders was removed from a disc and the other was taken from a farm trailer.

Woman injured in bus accident

One woman received minor injuries early today when the pickup truck in which she was riding was involved in an accident with a Sikeston R- 6 School District bus on Tanner Road near the Mini- Farms north of town.

The accident occurred at 7:10 a.m., according to the highway patrol, when a pickup driven by Floyd McMullin, 77, of Morehouse attempted to pass the school bus.

The driver of the bus attempted to make a left turn just as the pickup started around. Both vehicles were eastbound at the time of the accident.

Injured in the accident was McMullin's wife, Edith, 76. She was treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for minor injuries. McMullin and the driver of the school bus, Edward Green of Sikeston, were not injured.

The bus had just begun its morning route and had picked up only three or four children. None of the children was injured.

The fastest land speed by a wheeled vehicle was achieved by the "Blue Flame," powered by a liquid natural gas motor. Gary Gabelich averaged 622.407 miles per hour in two runs on the Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, on Oct. 23, 1970, The World Almanac says.

Visitors rob woman when she leaves room

Several items were stolen early this morning from the Pat Miller apartment, 534 Matthews Ave.

Police said the Miller woman told them she let a man she knew into her apartment about 1:30 a.m. and he brought in some other people who were strangers.

The woman said they sat and talked for awhile, then about 4 a.m. she left the room for a few minutes. When she returned she said the people and the items were gone.

Taken were a transistor radio worth $20, a pillow case, $8 worth of groceries, a Social Security card, 10 dish rags, a bottle of shampoo, one bottle of dish washing soap, a brassiere and a can of hair spray.

The bra and a wig, also taken from the apartment, were found by police at the corner of South Main Street and Matthews.

THE KING'S CAVALIER
by Samuel Shellabarger
(Avon 17442/$1.50
378 pp.)

The setting for Samuel Shellabarger's historical novel THE KING'S CAVALIER, a January Avon paperback title, is the 16th century struggle between Francis I, the king of France, and Charles Duke of Bourbon. The hero is Blaise de Lalliere, who chooses to serve the king rather than to join his father's plot against him, and then falls in love with the fiance of the chief agent of the Duke of Bourbon. The Christian Science Monitor has called THE KING'S CAVALIER "romance in the best Dumas tradition."

Book review

by Joyce Maynard
157 pp.)

In a cover story for The New York Times Magazine last year, Joyce Maynard, then a Yale sophomore, "looked back" on the first 18 years of her life. The article was much-talked- about and, several months later, Doubleday published her autobiography: LOOKING BACK: A Chronicle of Growing Up Old in the Sixties.

District sewing winners named

DONIPHAN — "A Tisket, A Tasket, From a Sewing Basket", was the theme of the 14th annual Missouri Sew With Cotton program Saturday at Doniphan Junior High School which featured competition among girls from the state's eight cotton producing counties.

Norman Bartmess of Kennett presided over the day's activities.

Mrs. Elsie Boaz, executive director of Patricia Stevens Finishing and Career School at Memphis, Tenn., gave contestants training in modeling. Mrs. Tica Camp, home economics instructor at Campbell High School, presented an educational program for girls not participating in the contest, entitled "Fashion Can Be Fun". Two of her students assisted her with the presentation.

Mrs. Velda Rankin, associate professor and state textiles and clothing specialist for the University of Missouri Extension Division, and Miss Charline Lindsay, state youth and 4-H specialist, presented programs for the adults, entitled "Fashion and Design" and "Getting It All Together".

Home economics instructor Kay Davis of Richland High School at Essex and Mrs. Charlotte Lampher of Oran, Miss Judy Swartz of Kennett and Miss Jewel Grady of Bloomfield, area extension home economists, presented the fashion show to an audience of approximately 700 people.

Bartmess, assisted by Mrs. Bartmess, the program coordinator, awarded the prizes to the district winners. Prizes of a $50 bond for the first place winners, $25 bond for second and $15 cash for third were presented in each category.

Winners included:

Girls Class — Pam Lancaster of Lilbourn, Cindy Jenkins of Dexter and Lisa Lowery of Parma.

Junior miss class I, first year — Diane DePew of Campbell, Carla Scholosser of Benton and Nancy Goodman of Portageville.

Junior miss Class II — Rosemary Scherer of Portageville, Angie Gibson of Dexter and Janet Mansbridge of Fisk.

Open class — Suzy Melson of Fairdealing, Kristi Westrich of Benton and Judy Eby of Sikeston.

Misses class — Cindy Blagg of Neelyville, Donna Slusher of Benton and Paula Siebert of Chaffee.

Girls, who have been selected to represent Missouri at the Southern Cotton Ginners Association convention at Memphis in March 1975 to model their winning garments along with delegates from Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee, are Rosemary Scherer of Portageville, Linda Sue Brigance of Kennett and Diane DePew of Campbell.

Mrs. Velma Barnes and Mrs. Orleen Kobert, home economics instructors, and girls from the home economics department and the junior high school art department at Doniphan, were responsible for the arrangement for the program and decorations.

Miss Rebecca Nistendirk, New Madrid County area textiles and clothing specialist, served as area chairman of the Sew With Cotton program.

The district Sew With Cotton program is sponsored by the Mississippi Valley Oil Seed Processors Association of Memphis, Kennett Oil Mill, Inc. and Sikeston Cotton Oil Mill, Inc. cooperating with the administration of the local high schools and home economics departments and the University of Missouri Extension Division.

Ann Landers

Widow sad she moved in with children

Dear Ann Landers: Every now and then you rerun a letter because someone thinks it should be repeated not only for those who didn't see it the first time, but for those who saw it and didn't pay any attention. I am in the second category, and now I'm paying the price for my stupidity.

The letter was from a woman, who, when her husband died, moved in with her daughter and son- in- law. That widow, strangely enough, made exactly the same mistake I did. Please, Ann, hunt up the letter and rerun it for those for whom it is not too late. Bless you.-- Sad And Sorry

Dear Sorry: Here's the letter and I agree, it's one that bears repeating.

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from the widow who sold her lovely house and moved in with her daughter. She wrote: "It was the biggest mistake of my life. I am now a guest in somebody else's home."

She's lucky. I made the same mistake, but I'm no guest-- I'm a maid and a laundress, a nurse, a gardener, a short- order cook and an answering service. I am not suggesting this is what my daughter and son- in- law had in mind when they begged me to move in with them. They were truly concerned that I would be lonely. But you know the old saying, "The road to hell is paved with good intentions."

I work harder now than I ever did in my own home. There are four children here and the music is so loud I have three- day headaches. I am under tension constantly because I try so hard to avoid expressing an opinion. I'm afraid I might be accused of "taking sides" or "interfering"-- the cardinals sins of old people.

It was sheer folly for me to give up my own home. If this letter helps just one widow make up her mind, it will be worth the pain I suffered to write it. (P. S. Where were you three years ago, Ann, when I needed you?)-- Sacramento

Dear Sac.: I was right here three years ago, giving the same advice. You probably read it but it meant nothing to you because you weren't a widow then and the problem was of no interest. Hindsight has 20-20 vision.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the middle kid and Lord only knows how much I hate that phrase. Here are a few of the reasons.

1. Your relatives think the oldest one is very smart and the youngest one is just darling. Notice the one who is left out.

2. The oldest kid was allowed to go to the fair by himself. The youngest one was too young to go by himself so Mom asked the neighbors to take him when they took their own kid who is his age. Notice again who got left out.

3. The teachers at school keep wanting to know how come I am not as smart as my older brother. They have also hinted that when my younger brother gets my age, he will be smarter than I am.

I am fed up with the whole scene and I wish you would help me out by printing my letter. I know you can't change my place in the family, but maybe certain people will see my letter and lay off. Thanks a lot, Miss Landers.-- Kid In The Middle

Dear Kid: Here's your letter and I certainly hope "certain people" will see it and lay off. Relatives are sometimes a little stupid, but teachers should know better than to compare a kid with his brother-- older OR younger. Good luck to you in the future.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

722 Park
Sikeston, Mo
April 21, 1974

Dear Mr. Blanton,

Due to the deletion of some important names in the article on our Annual Easter Egg Hunt, the Junior Woman's Club would once again like to use yo paper for some public 'thank-you's."

Our hunt this year was a big success not only for us, but for the hundreds of small-fry who entered. It is certainly a collective effort. The eggs were all donated by local grocery stores. We are indebted to : Sikeston IGA, Wades, Zieglers, Barketts', Lindsey's M&H, Hornbacks, Learue-McKinney, Marks, Liberty, Pardon's, Proffers, and Quik Sak. They provided us with 144 dozen eggs which we colored beautifully with dye provided by Malone & Hyde. This fine company continued to support our hunt with a check used to purchase all the prizes for category winners. We also had some outstanding help from Sgt. Joe Sherrard, who started each hunt and was our "rule-keeper."

To all the firms and individuals concerned, the Sikeston Junior Womans Club extends a a sincere "Thank-You."

Kay Piel
Corres. Sec.

On Friday, February 15, 1974 a conference was held with Representative Bill Burlison of Missouri's Tenth Congressional District at the Crystal City, Mo. Headquarters. Several representing the Jefferson County area shared their viewpoint on the Pro- Life Movement. Rep. Burlison would not commit himself to the anti abortion movement.

Whatever reasons Congressman Burlison may give for his not signing the Hogan Discharge Petition does NOT endorse him as a Pro- Life legislator.

This is a basic human life issue where a selective group have been denied their right to live by the liberalized abortion law. The Supreme Court did not recognize the fetus as a person. Legal personhood according to our law means having "human life." Not even the supporters of abortion will deny that the fetus is human life. Abortion destroys human life. It is only through our legislators that the unborn can be guaranteed their right to life.

Citizens in the Tenth District should be aware of each and every candidate's position on abortion carefully choosing those that will protect the lives of our unborn.

Oldest SeMo alumni sought by committee

CAPE GIRARDEAU — "Mirror, mirror, on the wall, who's the fairest of them all?" That's the question Snow White's stepmother asked her magic looking glass.

Southeast Missouri State University's centennial honors and awards committee is also asking questions these days. Members, however, are not looking to a magic mirror for the answers, but instead ot the university's alumni and the general public.

The committee, chaired by Dr. David Strand, is seeking to identify the oldest and earliest living alumni of the institution -- the oldest in terms of age and the earliest in terms of year of enrollment.

Dr. Strand, who is dean of the university, said two alumni in their 90s were identified duringthe centennial homecoming last October and are currently the leaders in the "longevity department."

They are Francis E. Cureton of Salem, Mo., who is 94 and attended the university in 1905- 1906, and Mrs. Alex C. Vasterling of Cape Girardeau, 93, who was enrolled in 1897.

The dean asks anyone knowing living graduates or former students who are either older or were enrolled earlier than Cureton and Mrs. Vasterling to pass the information along to him.

Once the oldest and earliest alumni are identified, they will receive plaques embossed with the university's centennial seal and will be otherwise recognized by Southeast Missouri State.

Kennett man charged with fatal shooting

KENNETT — A second degree murder charge against Robert Oakley, 49, of Kennett, was filed Friday afternoon by Pros. Atty. Charles H. Baker in connection wth the fatal shooting of Oakley's neighbor, David Chandler, 29, formerly of Senath.

Oakley was arraigned Tuesday in Dunklin County Magistrate Court and preliminary hearing was set for May 13 by Judge Leon McAnally, who set bond at $12,000.

Chandler was allegedly shot by Oakley after he went to Oakley's house trailer, next door to his, late last week, allegedly cursing the defendant and questioning him about watching him.

Oakley called police immediately after the incident, stating his gun fired accidentally, wounding Chandler in the lower neck. Chandler died shortly afterwards at Dunklin County Memorial Hospital.

Expo '74 to open Saturday

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Expo '74 is ready for Saturday's opening of a 184-day run.

Dedicated to "celebrating tomorrow's fresh new environment," it features exhibits of 10 foreign nations and 35 commercial and institutional sponsors. All are geared in some way to the environmental theme.

An estimated 50,000 persons will be on hand for opening day ceremonies, including President and Mrs. Nixon, Commerce Secretary Frederick Dent, and entertainer Danny Kaye.

It has been described as an example of how to make urban life work, but some critics have called it an ecological disgrace.

Human rights board to meet

The board of commissioners of the Missouri Commission on Human Rights will meet Friday at 7:30 p.m. in a meeting open to the public at Holiday Inn.

Some members of the commission staff will also be present.

My personal opinion is that American students do not always use these good conditions they have. Students have an easy life and perhaps they are too accustomed to it.

Story of future starts Friday

The 20th Century- Fox release co- stars Charlotte Rampling, Sara Kestelman and John Alderton.

Boorman's epic vision of the future is set in the year 2293 when the world is divided into two parts. One is a technologically perfect society peopled by an elite group of scientists. The other is a society of near savages living in the remains of war and pollution.

The two worlds collide in an explosive and dramatic confrontation when a mysterious outsider, Zed, portrayed by Connery, invades the Eternals' sheltered commune.

That is the story in purely basic terms, but Boorman has contrived a wealth of elaboration for his first film since the acclaimed "Deliverance".

For example, the Vortex people have solved the problem of mortality and are now faced with the problem of eternal life. Among their social misfits are the Apathetics, a sick segment of society for whom everlasting life has proved too heavy a burden.

There are, too, the Renegades, individuals whose misdemeanors have earned them the only punishment possible in a world where there is no death-- aging. Thus the Renegades live on in an eternal senility even though life is both painful and better to them.

The most incisive elaboration of all is the fact that the Immortals of the Vortex are emotionally sterile: they live an ethereal life of the spirit far beyond the experience of physical love.

The gods of man, instruments of government and repression, are unacceptable; sexual activity is both intellectually demeaning and socially undesirable in a society where computers are programmed to sustain and, if need be, to recreate the life of the members.

Sadly depleted by renegadism and apathy, the Vortex was forced to look outside for supplies of food. But in the Outlands were only Brutals— wretched survivors of a decimated and polluted world. A god named Zardoz was created to keep them in line.

Library cards aid businessmen

Library cards that help businessmen keep their books straight form the heart of a new business machine now available at Superior Business Machines, Inc., 112 E. Center St.

The magnetic cards are used in a library of more than 200 programs for Victor Comptometer Corporation's new line of desktop programable printing calculators, according to Mike Buchanan, salesman.

A Victor- made magnetic card reader/ recorder on the calculator permits permanent storage of programs and data that can be read into the calculator in seconds.

"Victor has the first programable calculator that aims at the business-commercial market," Buchanan stated. The calculators will also serve the engineering and statistical fields, he added.

They offer data and program storage capabilities formerly available only on calculators selling for much more, according to Buchanan.

The units look and operate like standard electronic calculators.

"Although we will serve basically our traditional calculator customers with this product we will now be able to handle a whole new range of complex applications and problems," Buchanan said.

Computer- like decision making capabilities provide symbolic jumping, looping and subroutines.

The four models range in capability up to 1000 program steps and over 100 storage registers.

A high- speed matrix printer prints up to five lines or 110 large and legible characters per second with 14 digit capacity.

More college couples living together on campus

At Beloit College in Wisconsin, 19-year-old Charlie and his girlfriend, Sue, have pushed their single beds together. They've lived in her dorm room for almost a year.

A 21-year-old athlete and his sophomore girlfriend at the University of Louisville in Kentucky have lived in her dorm room since last summer. They rely on their friends not to snitch on them and on a resident adviser who agrees to look the other way.

The college couples are among hundreds of students from Boston to Berkeley — and a lot more conservative places in between — who are living together on campus.

Most of them insist it's no big deal and that seems to sum up the general attitude. The couples, however, requested anonymity, citing possible sanctions or embarrasment for parents.

Interviews with scores of students and administrators at more than a dozen colleges and universities across the country indicate that although living together is rarely discussed in the college catalogue, it's become a popular way of life for some on campus.

It isn't as widespread as the "going steady" craze of the 1950s and early '60s, but almost all students interviewed could name at least two or three couples living together on campus. They saw nothing wrong with it.

The trend raised many eyebrows among parents, alumni and school officials when it appeared in the mid-60s and there was public outcry about campuses becoming dens of dope and sex. But most of that has disappeared.

"Most couples living together in the Harvard dorm have a very serious relationship," said a graduate student assigned as resident adviser to one dormitory, or "house" as it's called at Harvard. "It's a very acceptable thing."

"It's ordinary," said a Harvard housing official. "I don't know how the university could intrude. You couldn't possibly do a thing like bed checks."

When today's seniors were freshmen, living together — regularly spending the night on campus with someone of the opposite sex — was taboo at most schools, including Harvard. If caught, they could have been expelled. These days, it's not so risky.

None of the couples living together on campus had been assigned to the same room by the college. In fact, most use both rooms for the sake of appearance, mail, more storage space — and privacy when they want it.

"He only sleeps here when my roommate is away," said a chubby freshman at Indiana University. "But we eat together, study together and think about getting married some time, but not right away."

Her boyfriend reached over and took her hand. "As far as personal relations are concerned," he said, "you can learn a lot about each other this way. You can cope with problems better and understand each other better. It was a long time after we began spending most of our time together that we thought about sex, four or five months. Our relationship isn't just to sleep together."

College administrators, with an eye on possible public relations problems with the state, community, parents and alumni, said schools try to offer students a choice of living arrangements, ranging from one-sex corridors where someone of the opposite sex dare not tread, to dormitories allowing complete freedom.

"For a whole set of reasons, you're dealing with a very diverse group of students in terms of levels of maturity, past experience, personal needs and hometown environment," said Thomas C. Schreck, dean of students at Indiana where students can choose dorms with closed, limited or open visitation policies. "If you try to force them all into a set mold, you're not addressing yourself to the differences people possess."

A study of 482 member institutions of the Association of College and University Housing Officers shows that 70 per cent of the nation's colleges offer some type of co-ed housing to students. Only 15 per cent of the schools offer men and women rooms on the same floor or in the same suite. The study was produced by David A. DeCoster, an assistant dean of students in charge of residence life at Indiana. He said there is no evidence that co-ed housing or visitation has increased sexual activity among students.

"Literature shows that attitudes have changed dramatically in a liberal direction," said DeCoster, who is recognized by many college and university officials as an expert on campus housing. "They are more accepting of peer behavior. But there is no documentation that there are differences in their own behavior. And there is a false interpretation that liberal attitudes mean liberal behavior."

Don, a 22-year-old senior at Tufts College in Medford, Mass., agreed.

"This idea that everyone has lost his virginity at the age of 10 isn't true," he said. "A lot of people here haven't had intercourse by the time they're seniors. Everybody puts on a big show.

"But for those who do choose to start a relationship, it isn't scandalous. It isn't talked about. It's accepted." Don said he had lived with a girl in his dormitory for several months, but they had broken up.

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

"Now abide faith, hope, love, these three; but the greatest of these is love." (Corinthians 13:13)

PRAYER: Lork, please give me the presence of mind and courage to use the right keys to open doors of opportunity and challenge this day. In Jesus' name. Amen.

What's the law?

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Carol and Betty were a pair of good looking dolls who wanted to play house...with each other. Consequently, they tiptoed off to city hall where they applied for a marriage license. The clerk, however, was a pretty straight- laced sort of individual and when he stopped snearing long enough, he told them he wasn't going to give them one.

Outraged, the two gals marched off to the nearest courthouse where they demanded that the clerk be ordered to give them the license.

"I won't do it," insisted the clerk. "It would be a waste of feminine pulchritude. These two good looking girls should be marrying men and not each other."

"He's got no choice," responded Carol and Betty. "To deny a person the right to marry or associate with someone is unconstitutional. It's also cruel and inhuman punishment. Consequently, he's got to issue the license."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order the clerk to issue the license to the dolls?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the relationship proposed by Carol and Betty did not authorize the issuance of a marriage license because what they proposed is not marriage. Nor can the refusal to issue the license, concluded the judge, be considered punishment.

Rowe officials reject union representation

POPLAR BLUFF — Officials of Rowe Furniture Corp. announced in a notice to employes today that the firm no longer recognizes Upholsterers International AFL-CIO Union or its agents, further stating that the union no longer has any legal status with the company.

The notice, signed by J. W. Sisson, assistant vice president and general manager of the Poplar Bluff plant, said the company is free to deal directly with employes concerning wages, hours and working conditions without any interference from any union representative.

The 343 plant employes have been on strike since July 1973. The notice said that for about eight months the company has heard nothing from the union representatives and, during this time, "circumstances arose which convinced us (Rowe) that the union no longer represented a majority of employes in this plant."

A charge against the company was filed with the National Labor Relations Board asserting that the company had violated the law in refusing to deal with the union. After a thorough investigation, however, the board rejected the union charge.

The union was voted in by employes four years ago with challenged votes upheld by the NLRB following a tie vote of 34-34. About 76 persons were employed at that time by the Poplar Bluff plant, which began operations five years ago.

was sent to the Governor, who considered it a priority item.

It increases penalties for violation of the law to a maximum fine of $10,000 and five years in jail. The measure was strongly backed by Revenue Director James Spradling, who said it would aid his department in pursuing tax evasion of all types.

—Also sent to the Governor was legislation cracking down on evasion of the motor fuel tax, which sponsors contended would save the state millions of dollars annually.

The bill is aimed at stopping the practive of using home heating oil to operate diesel trucks thereby avoiding the motor fuel tax.

Lois Baxter, 36, was killed at 10:10 a.m. on Highway 53 on the St. Francis River bridge seven miles north of Campbell when her car crossed the center line and struck a bridge abutment. The victim had been married Saturday night, a patrol spokesman said.

Her body was taken to Landess Funeral Home in Campbell.

CONSERVATIONISTS SEE SUBSTITUTES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whale meat is still used for food, and whale oil goes into the manufacture of cosmetics, soap, shoe polish, margarine and other products. But with the great herds now gone, conservationists argue that substitute materials are available.

Inside the ears of the cats are tiny hairs that catch the most minute vibrations in the air, alerting the animal to movements even before it sees them.

Agitate Ky. derby favorite

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Trainer Jimmy Jimenez says, "I don't know if Agitate has run his best race yet."

And that could be bad news for a host of other trainers and owners who hope to win Saturday's 100th Kentucky Derby.

The Pennsylvania-bred colt who has campaigned in California is one of few 3-year-olds in the United States this year to go under 1:49 for 1 1-2 miles.

Agitate won the Bradbury Stakes by six lengths in 1:48 25, won the California Derby in 1:48 4-5 and also broke 1:49 when he finished third, less than a length out of first, in the Santa Anita Derby behind Destroyer, a Derby hopeful, and Aloha Mood, not in the Derby.

To make the Kentucky Derby his sixth victory in seven starts, Agitate, who did not race as a 2-year-old, will have to beat about 21 other 3-year-olds.

Entries for the 1¼-mile Derby at Churchill Downs will be made Thursday. A 22-horse field would equal the record set in 1928, when Reigh Count won, and would mean a gross purse of $319,000, with $267,500 to the winner.

Post time is 5:30 p.m., EDT. CBS will televise from 5 p.m.-6 p.m.

Agitate's toughest competition could come from the Woody Stephens-trained entry of Seth Hancock's Judger and John M. Olin's Cannonade and the Sigmund Sommer-owned pair of Rube The Great and Accipitar.

Judger, winner of the Florida Derby and Blue Grass Stakes, will be ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., who rode Agitate in all of his races except the California Derby. Pincay is committed to ride Judger, so the great Bill Shoemaker will ride Agitate.

Cannonade, winner of the Stepping Stone Purse, will be ridden by Angel Cordero Jr., while Miguel A. Rivera will be aboard Rube The Great, first in divisions of the Gotham and Wood Memorial, and Angel Santiago will ride Accipitar.

Other probables, and their riders, included Lexico, Gustavo Avila; Set N' Go, Bill Davidia; J.R.'s Pet, Darrell McHargue; Destroyer, Ismael Valenzuela; Sir Tristram, Bill Hartack; Pat McGroder, Tommy Barrow.

Buck's Bid, Don MacBeth; Confederate Yankee, Howard Grant; Flip Sal, Eddie Maple; Gold And Myrrh, Don Brumfield; Hudson County, Mike Micelli; Bold Clarion, Wayne Chambers; Consigliori, Darrel Brown, and Triple Crown, Braulio Baeza.

Bobby Ussery was expected to ride Little Current, while trainer Joe DiAngelo was still looking for a rider for Sharp Gary.

NMC'S biggest

John Higgerson of New Madrid claimed a 24 1/2 pound gobbler at 6 a.m. Saturday to record the largest out of 18 killed through Saturday in New Madrid County. The two- week season closes at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Hunting for an answer

SALEM — One young hunter in a school near here may not wind up valedictorian of his class, but he is certain to graduate with honors in outdoor education.

Tom Graham, Dent County conservation agent, says a teacher at the school swears the story is true. The teacher says that one of the questions on an elementary school test was to name the four seasons.

One youngster answered seriously, "Deer, turkey, squirrel and quail."

Keeping pace with dad

Horrell Townsend III of New Madrid scored on his first turkey hunt by bagging a 15- pound gobbler at 6:10 a.m. Saturday keeping pace with his dad, H. H. Townsend Jr. who bagged his turkey last Tuesday morning.

SHS stats impressive

With the baseball season rolling around to a close and district tournament action in full swing, the veteran Sikeston Bulldog team possesses some mighty impressive statistics. Just three of SHS's 14 opponents have been what you would call weak teams, yet the Bulldogs have hit well most of the time and now possess a .351 team batting average.

For those of you interested in streaks: Jim Saulter has now hit five homers in his last four games and has 14 r-b-i's in those contests. Sikeston catcher John Leible has proven that not only does he have a fine arm (he has thrown out 9 of 15 prospective stealers), but he can run also. The fleet Sikeston catcher has stolen 15 consecutive times this year to go along with his .417 average. He also leads the team in hits with 20 (in 48 trips) and is second in r-b-i's with 16. His total of 17 runs scored leads the team. Rick Eisenbach had two streaks broken against Fredricktown. Although he scored twice after walking, the Black Cats' hurler Mike Stevens broke Eisenbach's 11- game hitting streak. A fumbled grounder in the second stopped an errorless string at nine games.

The pitching has been less outstanding this year, wasting the stepped up run production. A staff e-r-a of 2.26 is about a run a game higher than it was last year. Righthander Kenny Stokes, the team's leading winner at 5-1, also leads in earned run average with an 0.96 mark. Mitchell Walker, with an 0.28 lifetime mark coming into this year, has pitched much better recently after a mid-season slump, and has dropped his mark down to 1.98. Rich Blankenship, who has actually had only one bad game (Poplar Bluff), also has his mark down to 2.6. Blankenship leads in strikeouts with 45 in his 31 innings. Stokes has fanned 43 in 29 frames. On the other hand, Sikeston batters have fanned just 7 times in the last three games.

McGlothen tames Braves

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Hammerin' Hank Aaron's 720th career home run failed to faze young St. Louis Cardinals righthander Lynn McGlothen Tuesday night.

What surprised the 24-year-old McGlothen, who tamed the Atlanta Braves 7-2 despite the wallop, was that Aaron hadn't connected earlier.

"He hit a fast ball out over the plate," confirmed McGlothen, who until Aaron connected had pitched a three-hit shutout.

"I'd been giving him fast balls all night," he added. "The first time up I don't know why he missed them but he did."

The recipient of a standing ovation during a pre-game ceremony, Aaron struck out ingloriously on a 2-2 McGlothen delivery in the second inning and fould out two innings later.

In the seventh, before he led off, the Cards had forged a 5-0 lead when the 40-year-old slugger again strolled to the plate.

Aaron worked the count to 21, then slammed a delivery on a line into his favorite territory well off the foul line and over the left field fence.

"He still amazes me," commented Braves Manager Eddie Matthews in respect to the wallop, Aaron's seventh among his 11 hits this season.

"Everyone by now has seen the replay of his 715th," Matthews added, "but we're still seeing them on the field. I'll never cease being amazed."

As prodigious as was the Aaron blast, however, a shot an inning later by the Cards' Lou Brock nearly dwarfed it.

The Braves' Buzz Capra walked Mike Tyson with one out and Cards reliever Al Hrabosky grounded into a force play before Brock teed off.

His 430-foot drive landed high in the right field bleachers and without the barrier the ball might have rolled into the nearby Mississippi River.

"It wasn't even coming down when it landed," marveled Cards Manager Red Schoendienst. "Aaron hit the heck out of the ball but Brock flattened it."

During the pre-game ceremony, Hall of Famer Stan Musial presented Aaron a plaque commemorating the Atlanta star's first major league homer.

Both Musial, whose National League record of 3,630 hits Aaron is chasing, and Schoendienst were Cardinals when Aaron connected off Vic Raschi here in April, 1954.

"A lot of good things have happened in 20 years," Aaron acknowledged. "I'm just grateful for the opportunities I've had."

Ling's first

Ricky Ling, 17, of New Madrid Route One marked his first turkey kill at 8:30 a.m. Friday near New Madrid with a 21- pound gobbler sporting an 8 3/4 inch beard. Ling's turkey was the fourth largest among 15 which have been registered at the State Conservation Commission, forestry division office at New Madrid since the season opened April 22. Doyle Hicks of Risco checked in a 24- pounder and Buck Hunter of New Madrid and Alfred Higgerson of Sicily Island, La. respectively claimed 23 and 22 pounders.

Lolich books first

The hard-hitting Kansas City Royals normally would look forward to facing a pitcher who's winless in four decisions and has allowed 5½ runs a game. But not when his name is Mickey Lolich.

"I hate to catch a guy who is 0-4 like Lolich was," said Kansas City Manager Jack McKeon. "You know that a good pitcher's going to win sooner or later. You just know it ...."

If McKeon was worried before the game, he was convinced afterwards. Lolich, working mostly with off-speed pitches, scattered eight hits as Detroit dumped the Royals 7-2. Aurelio Rodriguez keyed the Tiger attack with two singles, a double and two runs batted in.

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angels blasted the Boston Red Sox 166; the Cleveland Indians downed the Minnesota Twins 83; the Texas Rangers outlasted the Milwaukee Brewers 12-10; the New York Yankees edged the Oakland Athletics 4-3, and the Chicago White Sox shaded the Baltimore Orioles 2-1.

Lolich, a portly left-hander, has lost a little something off his fastball of late and has changed his style of pitching.

"I'm 33 so I throw a lot of sliders and a lot of knuckleballs. I had a good curve ball tonight but the velocity wasn't good," he said.

Angels 16, Red Sox 6

Fire-baller Nolan Ryan struck out a season-high 15 batters but his performance was marred by a fastball that got away in the first inning and hit Boston second baseman Doug Griffin just above the left ear. Griffin was carried unconscious from the field and hospitalized with a severe concussion.

Indians 8, Twins 3

Charlie Spikes stroked a two-run single to extend his hitting streak to 19 games as Cleveland won its fifth straight. Fritz Peterson and Fred Beene, both acquired from the Yankees last week, combined on an eight-hitter. Bobby Darwin homered twice for Minnesota.

Rangers 12, Brewers 10

Jeff Burroughs, Jim Spencer and Cesar Tovar hit home runs for Texas. Burroughs and Spencer hit theirs consecutively in the eighth inning to put the Rangers ahead for good. Johnny Briggs drove in three runs for Milwaukee.

Yankees 4, Athletics 3

White Sox 2, Orioles 1

Ron Santo's first American League homer, a two-run shot, accounted for Chicago's victory. Stan Bahnsen tossed a seven-hitter for the White Sox, besting Jim Palmer. Bobby Grich singled home the lone Baltimore run.

Tuesday's National League results: Houston 4, Chicago 2; St. Louis 7, Atlanta 2; San Diego 2, Montreal 1; New York 8, Los Angeles 7; Philadelphia 6, San Francisco 5; and the Cincinnati-Pittsburgh game was rained out.

Fuel rationing bill kept quiet

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $13.7-million appropriation to pay for the printings and storage of gasoline ration coupons is slipping through Congress virtually unnoticed, Rep. Harold V. Froehlich, R-Wis., said Monday.

He speculated that the issue is being kept quiet by members who are embarrassed they were so eager last December and January to impose gasoline rationing.

The money was contained in an $8-billion supplemental appropriation bill passed April 10 by the House. Last week money for the coupons also was approved by the Senate appropriations subcommittee on the interior.

The FEO printed 4.8 billion ration coupons starting last January which have never been used.

Fine speaks on voter registration

Dwight L. Fine of Jefferson City, Democratic candidate for state auditor, was guest speaker at Tuesday night's Kiwanis Club meeting at Ramada Inn and spoke on voter registration and campaign funds.

Fine said more people should register to vote and become involved. No one should complain about government if he does not vote, he added. In 1972, only 55 per cent of the people voted in the state and in the last election, only 20 to 30 per cent voted.

Evil can also be seen in the big money spent in politics, he said. More people should finance a campaign instead of a few large contributors. A candidate can spend more than a million dollars to be elected governor which is too much, he stated.

Politicians could also shorten the campaign season and make air time available on radio and television, Fine stated.

He concluded by saying that Americans should demonstrate that they care about this country by doing something to restore confidence in government and politics.

Fine was introduced by Lee Shell.

Don Pratt, president, appointed a nominating committee for new officers and a special committee to nominate the outstanding man of the year.

Fred French, scout executive, was a guest of the club.

The next Kiwanis Club meeting will be held Tuesday, with members gathering at Ramada Inn at 5:45 p.m. to go to Portageville for dinner. There also will be a roundtable meeting at Ramada Inn for those who cannot go to Portageville.

The Protestant cathedral at Ulm, Germany, is reputed to have the tallest cathedral spire in the world, with a height of 528 feet, The World Almanac notes. The Gothic cathedral's construction was begun in 1377 but wasn't completed until 1890.

Charles Powell, 7, Sikeston, bruised chest in fall; Angeline Standridge, 38, Blodgett, bruised chest in car accident; Sheila Haddock, 11, Matthews, bruised left hand, hit by baseball; Harvey Parker, 17, Charleston, injured right knee playing basketball; and Lonette May, 19, Sikeston, possible whiplash in car accident.

Leo McCormick Jr. charged with common assault was fined $35, given a six - month jail sentence and placed on probation for six months.

Eugene Gerald Brown was assessed $35 fine on charges of operating a motor vehicle with expired vehicle license and driving without a license.

Fines imposed on speeding charges were against Ricky Michael Washburn, $50; Lloyd Carlton Robinette, $30; Jeffery Don Delong, $26; Marilyn Joyce Cantrell $28; Raymond Thomas Burchfield, $26; Roy Williams Alsup, $25; Bonnie Lee Stubbs, $34; and Gene Raymond Aufdenberg, $25.

Bond says 1974 session not a successful one

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Legislature had been adjourned only briefly when House Speaker Richard Rabbitt called a news conference to praised the Democratic leadership for "a very successful session." Minutes later Gov. Christopher S. Bond held his own news conference and disagreed.

"Over-all," Bond said, "the legislative session was not a successful one."

Bond criticized legislative action in the Senate Tuesday where an amendment he described as "crippling" was added to a maternal health care bill he has pushed vigorously.

The amendment, attached by Sen. Emory Melton, R-Cassville, provides for legislative review of rules and regulations of the state Department of Health in administering the maternal health care and hospital aid provisions of the bill.

Bond would not commit himself to a veto of the measure, but said the rules review provision was "totally unwarranted and unsound."

Bond said a substitute bill on campaign reform introduced Saturday by Senate President Pro Tem William J. Cason, D-Clinton, "probably had as much to do with its defeat as anything else."

He described campaign finance reform as probably the major issue in the just - ended session of the legislature and said it was "unfortunate" the legislature failed to pass such legislation.

Bond described as "false economy" the legislature's cut of $30,000 from the budget of the Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council.

He said the cut would cost Missouri about $13 million in federal funds.

Bond said his effort to remove Department of Revenue fee offices from the patronage system "was blocked by the Democratic leadership in the Senate."

The Governor also criticized the legislature for appropriation cuts to the Department of Corrections and for not approving an Ethics Commission to oversee actions of government officials in an attempt to prevent conflicts of interest.

Bond agreed with some members of the House who said Senate language in a bill to repeal the personal property tax on household goods which would require state reimbursement of lost funds to local governments was probably invalid.

He said it was his feeling the legislature could not bind future legislatures to reimburse the funds and that he would seek legal advice from Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth before making a final decision.

He went on to add however, that "the state cannot, the state will not" reimburse local units of government for lost revenue.

Rabbitt said the loss of a campaign reform bill was the fault of the Senate, some representatives and too little time. "Many senators still don't want a bill," Rabbitt declared.

Rabbitt charged the upper chamber "held up most important bills until the last minute."

He said he doubted there was any chance for a special session on the reform issue or any other matter.

Rabbitt said the atmosphere in the House chamber in the final minutes of the session was caused by opponents of campaign spending laws and should be put in the context of an otherwise studious and productive four month session.

Highlights of the regular session. Rabbitt said, included a "complete open committee meeting" policy that restored the voters confidence in the political process. House committees, he added, are now more reflective of party proportion than ever before.

Majority Leader Kenneth Rothman, D-Clayton, said the session proved "the legislature can develop its own programs and be a co-equal branch of government."

Leaders agreed an alternative to the last minute rush of lawmaking must be found.

Campaign reform dies amid mass bedlam

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Amid cursing, yelling and general bedlam the promise of campaign reform in Missouri for the 1974 election died Tuesday night as the legislative session reached a raucous conclusion.

With House members pacing up and down aisles of the chamber, tossing paper in the air and screaming for recognition, Speaker Richard Rabbitt called for a vote on a conference committee report on campaign finance reform approved moments earlier.

The conference committee report had seemingly broken a deadlock between the House and Senate over the status of the Secretary of State on the controling Elections Commission after the stalemate extended into the last hour of the session.

Senate President Pro Tem William J. Cason had been adamant in his insistence that the Secretary of State be the voting chairman of the Elections Commission established to enforce provisions of the bill.

The House had insisted on no involvement for the secretary of state but agreed to a compromise proposal under which the secretary of state would be the non-voting chairman of the commission.

Later, the House agreed to a secord compromise, which provided that the Secretary of State would be the non-voting chairman except in cases of ties when he could vote. The House took up the bill with an impatient Majority Leader Kenneth Rothman being questioned by Rep. Earl Schlef, D-Dellwood, about removal of a provision to prohibit contributions by businesses and labor unions.

Rothman, who had led the House conferees, was attempting to gain passage so the Senate could act on the measure in the closing moments of the session.

The strategy almost succeeded as Rabbitt called for a vote on the measure without letting a number of representatives seeking recognition speak. Then, House decorum collapsed.

Papers flew in the air, Representatives charged to the front of the chamber and curses pierced the normally solemn atmosphere of the House.

Dead bills listed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Legislation that failed made as much news in the 1974 Missouri legislative session that ended Tuesday night as did bills that passed.

Among the bills that failed to make it:

Establishment of no-fault auto insurance; reinstatement of the death penalty; reforming the state's campaign finance laws; ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution; revision of the state criminal code; reforming the state's judicial system; compensation for victims of serious crimes; set up mandatory police training and give state aid for police training; establish minimum jail standards; collective bargaining for public employes.

Set a $2 minimum wage in the state; full state funding to Missouri Western and Missouri Southern Colleges; strengthen the drunk driving law; increase the state usury limit from 8 to 10 per cent; revamp the distribution formula for state aid to schools; allowing private school pupils to ride public buses; establishing a state ombudsman office for hearing citizens' complaints; revise the Open Meetings law to say that public bodies can't make rules to close records unless approved by the legislature and to allow police to have access to the records; raise interest rates on delinquent taxes; repeal of the ban on Sunday sales of most commodities except food and drugs.

Also, control the growth of corporate farms; preserve the secrecy of the ballot when voting machines are used; lowering the two-thirds majority vote on bond issues approvals; allow school districts to raise tax levies above $3.75 per $100 of assessed valuation by a majority vote rather than two thirds, and require criminal trials to start within 120 days from arrest for persons in jail.

DEDICATE NEW RECORDS CENTER

(Jefferson City) — Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick accepts the keys to Missouri's new State Records Center from Governor Christopher S. Bond. The two state officials participated in ceremonies dedicating the new rental quarters which will provide low cost, bulk storage for up to 282 million semi-active state records.

"This new building will allow us to expand our services and provide even greater savings of taxpayers' dollars," Kirkpatrick said. "It more than doubles our storage capacity, guarantees better fire protection, increases space for our microfilm operation and provides better protection for the historic records of the state Archives. I hope, however, the time is not too far away when we can have a state owned Records Center- State Library. With what we're paying in rent, such a building would pay for itself within a few years."

Kirkpatrick established the state records program in his office in 1965. In the nine years, more than $3¼ million has been saved by assisting state agencies to get rid of some 190 million obsolete records, provide record center storage in the old records center for 126 million records, and make available to state agencies a centralized microfilm service.

The General Assembly in 1973 approved expansion of the program under Kirkpatrick's direction to counties, cities and other local government units.

ARTFUL COTTON—The natural look of handwoven cotton provides the perfect fabric for showing off the distinctive craft of San Blas appliques. Each of the cutaway appliques circling the full skirt worn by Maid of Cotton Kathy Raskin is in a different design and a multitude of colors. Completing the outfit is a square-necked blouse with short flared sleeves trimmed in black. By El Buzon of Texas.

COOKING-UP

Readers,

This week's column includes a few recipes I have picked up from friends, who rate them among their favorites, and have become mine, too.

Judy Stricklin

OVEN STEAK

2 to 3 lb. steak
1 pt. tomato juice
1 medium size onion, chopped
1 cup evaporated milk
salt, pepper and garlic salt to taste
1 cup diced cheese

Cut steak into serving pieces and brown in hot fat.

Remove from fat, drain, and place in baking dish.

Combine other ingredients and pour over steak. Arrange 1 cup diced cheese on top.

Bake at 325 degrees for two or three hours, until tender.

APPLE CHEESE WALNUT BREAD

½ cup margarine
3/4 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 3/4 cup flour
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. ginger
1 cup grated apples
1 cup grated cheese
1 cup walnuts, broken

Cream margarine and blend in sugar and eggs. Set aside.

Mix flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and ginger and then add to margarine mixture.

Add apples, cheese and walnuts a little at a time until well mixed.

TRIPLE FUDGE CAKE

1 pkg. chocolate pudding and pie filling
1 pkg. devil's food cake mix
½ cup chocolate chip pieces
½ cup nuts, chopped

Follow directions on pudding box and make pudding. Cool partially.

Add box of dry cake mix to pudding. Pour in greased cake pan and sprinkle top with chocolate pieces and nuts.

Bake in 350 degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes.

HAMBURGER PIE

1 medium onion, chopped
1 lb. ground beef
1 No. 2 can green beans
10½ oz. can tomato soup
5 medium potatoes, cooked
½ cup warm milk
1 beaten egg

Cook onion and hamburger together; salt and pepper to taste. Add drained beans and soup.

Mash potatoes, add milk, egg, more salt and pepper and then spoon in mounds over meat.

Bake in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes.

ITALIAN SALAMI SALAD

1 small head lettuce
½ lb. salami, cut into cubes
2 medium tomatoes or 10 cherry tomatoes
2 cucumbers, sliced
Dressing

Wash and tear lettuce. Put in big tossing bowl and add salami, tomato and cucumber.

Toss with dressing of your choice until greens glisten.

WALDORF SALAD

2 cups diced apples
1 cup diced celery
1 cup grapes, halved
1 cup chopped pecans or walnuts
½ cup raisins

FRANK AND CHEESE DOGS

¼ cup softened margarine
¼ cup plus 2 tbsp. prepared yellow mustard
¼ cup shredded cheese
1 loaf Italian bread
2 tbsp. ketchup
1 pound weiners or frankfurters

Mix margarine, ¼ cup mustard and cheese.

Split bread and spread with cheese mixture. Wrap in foil.

Combine ketchup

Combine ketchup and leftover mustard and set aside.

Heat bread in oven for 10 to 15 minutes, while broiling or boiling weiners. If broiled, add ketchup mixture periodically, coating each. If boiled, cook, then roll in mixture.

Place weiners crosswise on bread and cut sandwiches off according to appetites.

Beef steak is way to any man's heart

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Steak has long stood for the good life in America, and now it is regarded as a sign of affluence. But, costly as it is, most of us feel the need for a broiled slab of beef once in a while.

Everyone has his own ideas about how steak should be cooked. Time was when most diners preferred it well done, or at least medium. But today they usually ask for medium rare and some relish it half raw.

Most steak buffs have their favorite cut, and this brings up something I haven't been able to figure out: the names they give steaks. I'm told that Britons had never heard of London broil until some Yank informed them what it was. And, although I was born and raised in Manhattan, I had never seen a New York steak on a menu until I visited Maryland.

As most of us know, beef is graded by government inspectors for the protection of the consumer. It ranges from prime, the most expensive, to choice, which is generally considered the best for daily household fare, and on down the ladder to grades which are tough but still edible. Actually, the bottom levels are not recommended unless you blanket them with tenderizer and have a good set of teeth.

Most butchers will tell you just what grade of meat you are buying, but there are exceptions. Unless you know the man behind the meat counter, it is best to get a briefing on the signs of quality. Tender beef is heavily marbled with white streaks of fat. And the color of the best beef, experts say, is bright crimson.

Many people think of steak as a cut of beef seared on both sides in the broiler, then served with mushrooms or onions and French fries. But there are other ways. Steak cooked in beer is delicious, and a cut of round simmered in wine can be a masterpiece. In fact, this method can make a tough piece of meat fork-tender.

STEAK IN WINE SAUCE

3 pounds round steak 1½ inches thick
2 tablespoons butter
3 medium onions chopped
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
Dash of worcestershire
1 cup sliced mushrooms
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup red wine
1 to 2 tablespoons flour

Brown steak on both sides in butter. Add onions, mustard, salt, worcestershire, mushrooms, wine and ½ cup water. Cover tightly and simmer 2 hours. Add mixture of 1 part wine and 2 parts water if needed. Add flour to pan juices and simmer 3 minutes. Add still more liquid if needed. Good with chilled ale. Serves 6.

Bread has bananas and peanut butter

Nutritious loaf

Bananas and peanut butter go into this tender and delicate bread.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Although we've baked dozens of loaves of banana quick bread in our test kitchen, we never thought of adding peanut butter to the batter until a friend who lives in the Canal Zone and a reader from Jackson, Miss., sent us their recipes for such a bread. Then we came upon the combination in "Cook-in — A Beginner's Guide to the Fun of Cooking" by Kathleen Dunning Fisher (David White). On testing all three recipes our tasters agreed that Kathleen's was by far the best because it made the tenderest and most delicate loaf. Here is our adaptation of her nutritious bread.

BANANA BREAD

2 cups unsifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
2 large eggs
2 to 3 ripe bananas
½ cup crunchy peanut butter

Grease a 9 by 5 by 3 inch loaf pan. Thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Cream butter and sugar. Beat eggs until thickened and lemon color; add bananas and beat until smooth. Add peanut butter and blend well. Add flour mixture, in about 4 additions, alternately with banana mixture until just smooth each time. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 50 to 70 minutes. Let stand on a wire rack for 10 minutes; loosen edges and turn out on rack; turn right side up. Cool completely. Bread slices well fresh from the oven or cold.

Cheese bread is made into miniature loaves

Tiny cheese loaves

Miniature cheese loaves are fun to serve and give as gifts.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I love the recipe for the large loaf of cheese bread in your cookbook. Now I would like to use that recipe for making miniature loaves to serve to guests and to give as gifts. But I don't know how many small pans and the temperature and time to use in baking these. — BREAD BUFF.

DEAR BREAD BUFF: What a fine idea! I'm delighted to give you the details for making the miniature loaves. In this case I found it practical to double the original recipe and I used another method of mixing. The cheese bread recipe in my cookbook has been very popular — perhaps because it uses less sugar and more cheese than the usual formula. I hope these miniature loaves will be just as well received. — C. B.

MINIATURE CHEESE LOAVES

3¾ to 4¼ cups unsifted flour
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 packages active dry yeast
1 cup milk
½ cup water
2 cups grated (medium fine) sharp cheddar cheese, slightly packed (½ pound)

In large bowl of electric mixer thoroughly stir together 1½ cups of the flour, the sugar, salt and undissolved yeast.

In a small saucepan over low heat, heat the milk and water until very warm — 120 to 130 degrees. Gradually stir into flour mixture; beat at medium speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl several times. Add cheese and ¼ cup flour; beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl several times. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough. Turn out onto a lightly floured surface; knead until smooth and elastic — 8 to 10 minutes. Place in clean, dry, greased mixer bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm (about 80 degrees) draftfree place until doubled — about 1½ hours.

Punch down dough. Divide into 8 equal portions and shape into 8 loaves for 4½ by 2½ by 1½ inch pans or divide dough into 4 equal portions and shape into 4 loaves for 6 by 3 by 2½ inch pans. Place in greased pans. Cover; let rise as previously until doubled — about 1 hour and 20 minutes.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven 20 minutes for 4½-inch loaves and 25 minutes for 6-inch loaves; place a sheet of foil over loaves during last 5 minutes to avoid excessive browning. Remove from pans to wire racks and cool. If bottoms and sides of loaves are a pale color when you remove them from pans, return loaves (minus pans) to a low rack of oven and continue baking at 375 degrees until sides take on more color — about 5 minutes; bottoms of loaves will show oven-rack marks but that doesn't matter. Cheese loaves may be stored at room temperature for a day or two, but if they are to be kept longer they should be refrigerated; in either case reheat them before serving.

For Sunday brunch fill toast cups with scrambled eggs. To make the cups, remove the crusts from thin slices of soft bread and then spread the slices with soft butter.

Coffee Corner by Cherie

A friend brought this little article to me recently, and it hits the spot so beautifully I'm going to reprint it so you too may enjoy her feelings on little boys.

YOU'LL KNOW
IT'S A BOY IF ...
by Ruth Stoffel

... the only thing he'll put away is a big meal.

... he thinks of a bath as mission intolerable.

... he'll cut off his jeans but not his hair.

... your scolding leaves him emotionally undisturbed.

... he believes it's an ill wind that blows a musical instrument.

... he scores nine out of ten baskets, and the tenth is always your wastebasket.

... his T-shirt is on backwards and inside-out.

... he changes your kitchen from early American to late-snack.

... he's peppier when he's sick than you are when you're well.

... he'll go to the moon but not to a birthday party.

... he knows how a space ship works but not a pants hanger.

... he thinks square meals are really square.

... he changes your contemporary furniture to just temporary.

... he makes you feel as old as he thinks you are.

And I might add —
he isn't worth 2 cents — but a million dollars wouldn't even make a down payment!

Recipes sometimes call for "greasing and flouring" a pan. To do this, use a piece of paper toweling and rub solid white shortening over the entire inside surface of the pan; then sprinkle the greased surface with flour, shaking the pan back and forth to coat evenly. Finally, invert the pan and gently knock the bottom to remove excess flour.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, May 1, the 121st day of 1974. There are 244 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1898, American forces under Admiral George Dewey destroyed a Spanish fleet in Manila Bay.

On this date:

In 1522, England declared war on France and Scotland.

In 1847, the cornerstone for the Smithsonian Institution was laid in Washington.

In 1931, the Empire State Building, then the tallest in the world, was dedicated in New York.

In 1935, Ethiopia's Emperor Haile Selassie fled from Addis Abba as Italian forces pushed toward the capital.

In 1942, in World War II, the U.S. War Production Board restricted the production of ice cream.

In 1945, the German radio announced the death of Adolf Hitler.

In 1961, the first political hijacking of an Amercian airliner to Cuba took place.

Ten years ago: Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev warned at a May Day parade in Moscow that U.S. policies toward Cuba could drag the world into what he called the abyss of another world war.

Five years ago: Five American mountain climbers and two Sherpa guides were killed by an avalanche while on an expedition in Nepal.

One year ago: White House News Secretary Ron Ziegler apologized to the Washington Post for past statements denigrating the paper's Watergate reporting.

Today's birthdays: General Mark W. Clark is 78 years old. Golfer Frank Beard is 35. Singer Kate Smith is 65.
